MADISON MAN SENTENCED TO 100 MONTHS FOR SELLING CRACK COCAINE

Madison, Wis. - Stephen P. Sinnott, United States Attorney for the Western District of Wisconsin, announced that Alphonso Randall, 27, of Madison, Wis., was sentenced yesterday by U.S. District Judge Barbara Crabb to 100 months in prison without parole for selling crack cocaine. This prison term will be followed by four years of supervised release. Randall pleaded guilty to this charge on March 5, 2010.

Between July 10, 2009 and August 4, 2009, an undercover police officer placed several phone calls to Scorpio Robinson to arrange drug transactions. On July 10, July 13, July 17, and July 24, Robinson had Christopher Tibbs deliver crack cocaine to the undercover officer. On July 22 and July 31, Robinson had Alphonso Randall deliver the drugs to the undercover officer. Robinson had other people make the deliveries for him because he was on electronic monitoring during this time frame and couldn't leave his home.

Robinson was sentenced on April 28, 2010, to 84 months in prison for his role in the offense. His sentence was increased because he possessed two firearms in connections with his drug trafficking and because Judge Crabb found him to be an organizer or leader of the conspiracy. Tibbs was sentenced on April 27, 2010, to seven years in prison for his role in this conspiracy along with being an accessory after a bank robbery. Randall's sentence was higher than the other sentences because of his extensive criminal history.

The charges against Randall were the result of an investigation conducted by the Dane County Narcotics and Gang Task Force and Federal Bureau of Investigation. The prosecution of the case has been handled by Assistant U.S. Attorney Elizabeth Altman.
