As part of the conspiracy, the defendant and his coconspirators purchased, received, bred, trained, conditioned, transported, and delivered dogs for the purpose of entering them in animal fighting ventures.

As part of the conspiracy, the defendant and his coconspirators knowingly attended animal fighting ventures.

It was further part of the conspiracy that the defendants and their co-conspirators purchased, received, bred, trained, conditioned, transported and fought dogs for purposes of selling those dogs to be used in animal fighting ventures.

Overt Acts

For decades, Casillas and his co-conspirators (including one who has been living in Florida) have operated in Puerto Rico and elsewhere “Stone City Kennel,” which breeds and fights dogs, including pit-bull type dogs, in the United States and internationally. Stone City Kennel has participated in over 150 dog fights in in Puerto Rico, Mexico, Ecuador, Peru, the Dominican Republic, New Jersey and New York.

During the course of the conspiracy, Casillas has trained dogs in Puerto Rico for animal fighting ventures. This has included chaining pit-bull type dogs to tread mills to walk or run for miles. In 2018, Casillas explained that, with respect to new dogs, “[w]e start on 5 miles n 15 min on [tread]mill.” A photo of one such dog, with possible bite-mark scars on the head, is below:

Stone City Kennel also has used steroids on its fighting dogs, including winstrol, metenolone, and sustanon.

Casillas would sometimes send his dogs outside of the United States to be conditioned for fighting. This included sending dogs to St. Croix and Ecuador. Some of the reasons were, according to Casillas, the risk associated with conditioning the dogs in the United States and that he had friends abroad who worked the dogs well.

During the course of the conspiracy, Casillas sold pit-bull type dogs for animal fighting ventures, including a female “champion” (a dog who has won around three fights) for approximately $20,000. Other dog sales were negotiated for prices ranging from $1,000 to $10,000, with shipment to the mainland United States via airplane cargo for $200, in addition to the veterinary and kennel expenses. Casillas encouraged potential buyers to fly to Puerto Rico to pick up the dogs in his possession.

In 2020, Casillas explained that Stone City is “Me n my partner in Florida.”

According to Casillas, he does not “pick up” dogs during fights, meaning that he does not remove a losing dog from a fight.

Stone City Kennel fought a dog named Miss Piggy against another dog whose owner, “Jim Comb,” (according to Casillas) travelled to Puerto Rico for the fight. Stone City Kennel fought Miss Piggy in at least two other fights in Puerto Rico.

On January 27, 2018, Casillas invited a third party to his house for a dog fight the following day at 8 AM.

On or about March 21, 2018, Casillas traveled from Puerto Rico to the Dominican Republic to enter a dog that he possessed in an animal fighting venture on or about March 24, 2018 in Santo Domingo. The dog was injured during the fight and died afterwards.

On January 5, 2019, Casillas (a/k/a Stone City Kennel) promoted a dog fighting event to take place on April 13, 2019 in the Dominican Republic.

The third party offered $5,000. Casillas responded: "Let me talk to my brother we partner on that bitch ill get back to u." He later stated: "Do u want to come for her or were u want me to send it."

In August 2020, Casillas discussed sending a dog to Austin, Texas and arranged the details for a third party to take the dog across the U.S. border into Mexico.

In August 2020, Casillas offered to sell a two-time dog-fighting winner for $4,500 to a potential buyer in South Carolina. Casillas explained that "[r]ight now u can come to pr for $50 buck...and take him." Casillas explained that payment could be made through Paypal.

In March 2021, Casillas was negotiating with a potential purchaser in Louisiana the sale for $4,500 of a dog. He referred the purchaser to an online page, which indicated the dog-fighting wins in the dog's lineage.

With that same potential purchaser, Casillas explained in March 2021 that he intended to fight the dogs in the Dominican Republic. Then, in June 2021, Casillas stated that "[w]e had a lot of problem taking them out of here But we finally did." Casillas confirmed that his dogs had fought.

In June 2021, Casillas told a potential purchaser in Alabama of one of the Stone City Kennel dogs that transportation costs were as follows: "If cargo is working 200 plus vet n kennel. If u going to get a pup he can go on cabin for 100." He explained that he had dogs "ready to go" with fights in the Dominican Republic and in Mexico. Casillas further explained that his dogs must first fight before being used to breed, and "That how we been doing it for the last 30 years." In May 2020, Casillas told another potential purchaser "u can not leave this shit 30 plus year ain't enough."

In July 2021, Casillas travelled from Puerto Rico to fight Stone City Kennel dogs in the Dominican Republic on July 24. The dogs of Stone City Kennel lost.

In January 2022, Casillas stated that he had given two dogs to a friend but "both lost."

Nonetheless, he stated that Stone City Kennel “will always have some” dogs.

In July 2022, a potential purchaser communicated with Casillas that he had been “asking about getting a dog from you... You have this blood still available?” Casillas responded, “come n get one.”

On September 30, 2022, Casillas indicated to a person known to the grand jury the following:

- Casillas is part of Stone City Kennel;
- Casillas has been engaged in dog fighting for 35 years;
- Stone City Kennel has participated in over 150 dog fights;
- Casillas has participated in matches in many jurisdictions, including Mexico, Ecuador, Peru, Dominican Republic, New York, and New Jersey;
- Casillas has trained four dogs at a time to fight;
- Casillas currently has three females (one of whom will soon have a litter) and two males; and the two males can be sold for $2,000 each.

On October 6, 2022, four pit-bull-type dogs chained near over-turned barrels were found on property associated with Casillas in Humacao, Puerto Rico.

All in violation of 18 U.S.C. §§ 49, 371 and 7 U.S.C. §§ 2156(a)(1), (2)(A) & (b).

FORFEITURE

As a result of the offenses charged above, the defendants shall forfeit to the United States any animal involved in those offenses. All pursuant to 7 U.S.C. § 2156(f) and 28 U.S.C. § 2461(c).
