REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE
FOREIGN AGENTS REGISTRATION ACT OF 1938, AS AMENDED
FOR THE CALENDAR YEAR 1970

TO THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA IN CONGRESS ASSEMBLED:

I have the honor to report on the administration of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended, pursuant to Section 11 of the Act, which requires the Attorney General from time to time to report to the Congress concerning the administration of the Act, as well as the nature, source and content of political propaganda disseminated or distributed by agents of foreign principals registered under the Act.

It has been the policy of the Department since 1950 to prepare a report each year. This report covers the administration and enforcement of the Foreign Agents Registration Act for the calendar year 1970.

STATISTICAL SUMMARY

During the year 1970, the Department received 54 new registration statements and terminated 52 registrations, leaving a total of 452 active registrations on file as of December 31, 1970. Individuals acting as officials or employees or rendering assistance to a registrant for or in the interest of the latter's foreign principal filed 355 short-form registrations under the Act.

In this reporting year, the staff of the Registration Section reviewed 766 supplemental statements and processed 6,669 pieces of both incoming and outgoing correspondence which involved other government agencies, registrants and the general public. In this period 120 amendments were filed to correct deficiencies in active registrations.

ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT

In the administration of this Act, the Department employs normal administrative procedures to effect compliance with its provisions while necessary investigative actions are conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Statements and exhibits filed by registrants are carefully reviewed by staff attorneys to determine their conformity with disclosure provisions of the Act, with the consequence that requests by the Department for additional information or other corrective action resulted during this year in the submission of 120 amendments to active registration statements.

In addition, information provided by government agencies or obtained from public sources is also reviewed and considered by staff attorneys to determine whether the various provisions of the Act would be applicable. As a consequence of these procedures it was not necessary during the reporting year to employ any injunctive remedies.

The Department has also continued the practice of distributing copies of registration statements and supplements thereto to interested departments and agencies of the Federal Government as well as to certain Congressional Committees.

Department information indicated that during the year some agents of foreign principals failed to comply with certain disclosure provisions of the Act when dealing with the Congress and its members. The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House were accordingly advised of the obligations imposed upon such agents to disclose the identities of their foreign principals, the fact of their registrations or to furnish copies of their registration statements when appearing before committees of Congress or conferring with its members. It was suggested that Committee Chairmen be alerted to these disclosure provisions.

NATURE, SOURCE AND CONTENT OF POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

The following is an analysis of the principal trends noted during 1970 in the propaganda material disseminated within the United States in the English language on behalf of foreign principals and geographical areas listed below. Principal publications are set forth together with the approximate circulation figures per issue.

During the year 1970, 6,944 dissemination reports were filed in connection with the distribution of 18,709 different pieces of propaganda which were submitted with the reports.

The Middle East conflict was the major, although not exclusive, subject of The Arab World issues disseminated by the Arab Information Center during 1970. The articles on the conflict varied in format but included the following:

an interview with a former Foreign Service Officer assigned to the United States Embassy in Cairo (the officer concluded that ". . . our [American] interests would be best furthered by a more even-handed attitude on the Arab-Israeli impasse.");

a reprint from the Lebanese publication Fateh entitled "Toward a Democratic Palestine" (the article profiled the New Palestine as the "homeland of the Palestinians usurped and colonized in 1948 by the State of Israel" as well as the land occupied by Israel in 1967; this New Palestine ". . . rejects a theocratic, feudalistic, aristocratic, authoritarian or racist-chauvinistic form of government.");

a reprint from Time Bomb in the Middle East entitled "A Palestinian View" (this article maintained that the Arab-Israeli conflict is "derivative" of the ". . . underlying Palestine Problem, which denotes the half-century old struggle of the indigenous Palestinian population against Zionist colonist--who converged from abroad upon the Arab-inhabited country with the intention of transforming it into a Jewish state . . ."); and articles written for The Arab World magazine by a variety of authors, i.e. "The Geneva Convention for the Protection of Civilian Persons: An Analysis of its Application in the Arab Territories Under Israeli Occupation," "The UNRWA Diet," "Zionism, South Africa and Apartheid: the Paradoxical Triangle," and "The Middle East Conflict: an Anti-Imperialist View."

In addition to articles concerned with the Arab-Israeli dispute, The Arab World, in each issue, published articles on Arab culture, art, or literature. Well-illustrated articles included "Islamic Art: Submission to Divine Will," "Towards a Revolutionary Arab Art," and "Wells of Bitterness: A Survey of Israeli-Arab Political Poetry."

Arab Views was a monthly review of Arab opinion and news which characterized its purpose for publication as being ". . . to supply them [the American public] with the Arab's own interpretation of events, as well as report Arab progress and development in all fields." Under topic headings (Politics, Religion, Poetry, People, Visions), Arab Views published articles attacking "Israel's continued and growing belligerency," articles urging Arab unity in force and strategy, articles defining the "Palestine Problem" and urging a solution to that problem, and articles describing conditions within the nations comprising the League of Arab States. Conclusions drawn by Arab Views appear to mirror those found in The Arab World magazine.

Two booklets were disseminated by the Arab Information Center during 1970: "The Unholy Alliance: Israel and South Africa" (which concluded that ". . . the relationship between the two racist states is both old and new" and that "The future seems to hold stronger ties of cooperation between the two countries.") and "Letters From the American People" (which in reprinting letters to the editors of leading newspapers ". . . hope/s/ to offer others the challenge of creative thought and the encouragement to make their views known.")

During 1970, the Palestine Liberation Organization disseminated various reprints, press releases, and booklets all concerned with the conflict in the Middle East. Special issues of The Arab World magazine distributed by the PLO spotlighted the "Palestine Problem" as the focal point of the conflict; articles in those special issues concluded that as long as ". . . the Israelis are obstructing every effort for peace and as long as their military occupation of Arab territories and acts of oppression continue, the resistance, being legitimate self-defense, will have to continue and further escalate."

Among the reprints issued by the PLO was one entitled "Basic Facts About the Palestine Problem" which concluded that ". . . the struggle of the Arab people of Palestine is in harmony with the sacred values of man, in harmony with the principles of international law and order, in harmony with the principle of self-defense."

The PLO press releases were issued to set forth the PLO position on current, news-related topics. Such releases expressed concern for American nationals in Jordan during the 1970 conflict, but ". . . categorically refused to accept the pretext of their safety as the reason for United States intervention" in the crisis. Another press release in October, 1970, interpreted the bombing of the New York office of the Palestine Liberation Organization for the second time that year as evidence of "certain groups" in America who have been attempting to intimidate the Palestinians and ". . . silence the Palestinian voice on this continent."

Selected titles of the booklets disseminated by the PLO reveal their content and direction:

"[Israeli] Violations of the Geneva Convention of 1949"

"The Arab Case: Documents and Testimonies"

"Palestine, Israel, and Peace"

"The Expulsion of the Palestine Arabs from Their Homeland"

"Persecution of the Arab Minority in 'Israel'."

The Palestine Arab Delegation disseminated items similar to those of the PLO: press releases, booklets, and reprints. In content, all those items dealt with the conflict in the Middle East and the various proposals for a settlement of that conflict. In a memorandum submitted to the Big Powers and the Secretary General of the United Nations, the PAD concluded that the present negotiations for "a lasting and just peace in the Middle East . . . are not guided by the principles of justice, international law, or the United Nations Charter, but are made under duress with the object of upholding aggression and confirming the fruits of aggression."

Other items disseminated by the PAD included the booklet "Zionist Leaders Conspire to Railroad the United States into a Third World War," an article "Is the Modern State, Israel, a Fulfillment of Prophecy?" and a memorandum submitted to the Committee on Foreign Relations of the United States Senate entitled "The United States, the Soviet Union, and the Middle East."

Max N. Berry

Circular Letter

In an October letter, Max N. Berry urged various American importers of Austrian products to "consider sending letters or telegrams to your Congressmen requesting that they vote against . . ." the trade import quota bill under consideration by the Congress. The October letter stated that if the trade import quota bill became law, it would ". . . create protectionist quotas on a multitude of imported articles, lead to the raising of customs duties on additional imports, likely start an international trade war, and will establish a precedent for future unreasonable legislation restricting imports."

The Australian Daily News, published each weekday by the Australian News and Information Bureau, datelined 1970 news stories from major Australian cities; these news stories concerned not only Australia's domestic policies but also her role in international affairs.

In the area of domestic policies, the Australian Daily News reported a 6 per cent national wage rise granted in December; this rise was justified, the report concluded, in view of the progress the Australian economy made last year and the prospects of that growth in the future. A September Daily News report announced that the nation's average rate of growth for the past eight years was 5.8 per cent. Further in the area of domestic politics, the Australian Daily News reported the composition of the new Federal Senate to take office in July of 1971; Radio Australia said that despite the Government losing one seat in the new Senate, "the Government's voting position was expected to suffer little change." Areas of primary concern to the Federal Government, and outside the realm of the Australian economy, were those areas affecting Australia's international affairs; of considerable importance was the Australian role in Vietnam, the topic of Australia's Foreign Minister's speech to the United Nations General Assembly in September. As reported by the Australian Daily News, "Mr. McMahon said the gravest problem in Asia was the situation in Vietnam. It was understandable that the world's conscience should have revolted against the fearful losses and hardships suffered by the people of Vietnam. But it was less understandable that these people--victims of aggression in its most naked and ruthless form--and the elected Government of South Vietnam, which had demonstrated beyond doubt that it reflected the wishes of the great majority of the people, should have had to undergo so much biased and totally unfair criticism."

Also in the arena of international affairs was the Australian Daily News reporting of the country's attitude toward the trade import quotas proposed in Congress; the News reported that these measures were viewed as "protectionist and restricting" and of little worthwhile effect for American producers. A concluding report of this topic stated that "The Australian Government hoped that the U.S. Administration would do its best to alleviate these restrictions and consider the interests of its major trading partners."

The Australian Weekly News Round-Up was tied to news-related events in its reporting during the year. Essentially the same items, but with more in-depth coverage, were reported by the Weekly News Round-Up as compared to the reporting of the Daily News. Consequently, single weekly issues of the Round-Up were devoted to the Australian economy, Vietnam, and the U.S.--Australian trade relationship. Other weekly reports included the Australian migration figures (reporting a slight drop in the number of British migrants to Australia), the defeat of Australia's GRETEL II in the America's Cup Yacht race, and Pope Paul's visit to the country in November.

The Australian Science Newsletter and the Australian Economic Newsletter reported on a wide variety of subjects in 1970:

"Urban Developments in Australia"

"Shipping and Shipbuilding in Australia"

"Iron and Steel in Australia--Today and Tomorrow"

"Overseas Trading Prospects"

"The Australian Economy: 1970" (" . . . an analysis of the past year's performance, a review of world conditions, and the broad outlook for the domestic economy and the balance of payments during 1970-1971.")

A monthly, eight-page, economic Australian Newsletter was disseminated by Sydney Morrell and Company, Inc. during 1970 on behalf of the Victoria Promotion Committee. Each Newsletter was designed to promote investment in the economy; "B/usinessmen visiting Australia [were] invited to use the facilities made available by the Victoria Promotion Committee at no cost to assist them in assessing the investment potential of the country and of the State of Victoria in particular."

Major topics of both Australian economic growth and future investment potential during 1970 included the following:

TEXTILES: Victoria claimed to be a center for the Australian textile industry; it was reported by the Newsletter that "M/any companies are competing satisfactorily with imports of cheap lines [of textiles] by using the labor and other benefits of decentralization [in Victoria]."

COMPUTER INDUSTRY: The Newsletter reported that an estimate of the compounding growth rate for the computer bureau sector of the economy is 25-30 per cent; the Newsletter further reported at present an acute shortage of staff in this sector of the Australian economy.

METALS INDUSTRY: Reporting a mineral boom, the Newsletter detailed a resultant increase in the metals export from Australia; the overall effect of this boom "is in bringing more companies into closer involvement in steel production."

During the year, the Newsletter also reported on a variety of other topics: the opening of the Melbourne International Airport, a vital step in expanding such fields as tourism, trade and manufacturing; the coming of winter, in May, and the accompanying 20 per cent growth rate in the sport of skiing; and a concluding report that "R/oughly one-third of the Australian manufacturing industry is located in Victoria with new facilities being opened each year to add to the State's industrial family."

McCann-Erickson, Inc. published a newspaper advertisement on behalf of the Commonwealth of the Bahama Islands. This advertisement stressed the "steady and impressive progress" in the past three years and presented the New Industries Encouragement Act which gives "Bahamian and foreign investors alike broad concessions and relief from customs duties on materials and furnishings imported, and on real property taxation." The advertisement concluded by urging travelers and investors to "keep in touch with the Bahama Islands."

"Operation Beehive" was the concern of the press releases disseminated during 1970 by Peter Rothholz Associates, Inc. "Operation Beehive" entailed the Barbados industrial development program which provides a variety of incentives to manufacturers who open plants in the country. The press releases described some of these incentives such as a ten year tax holiday, duty-free importation of raw materials used in the manufacture of goods for re-export, lease-purchase arrangements on government constructed factory space, and unrestricted repatriation of capital and profits. "Operation Beehive" was presented throughout the United States during the year.

The purpose of the press releases issued by Roy Duffus Associates, Inc. during 1970, was to advertise the investment opportunities available in Colombia; in presenting those opportunities, the releases also discussed various aspects of the Colombian economy and its growth and expansion during the year. Examples of this Colombian growth which were experienced in 1970, and which were reported by the Registrant, included the Colombian telephone service (second only to Japan in rate of growth) and the mining of newly discovered coal deposits which enables Colombia to become an exporter of coal to other South American and Western Hemisphere countries.

Press releases also advertise a new brochure which would provide specific information for foreign investors in the Colombian economy; the booklet explained Colombia's attitude toward foreign investment and clarified certain necessary foreign investment procedures.

In June of 1970, Wyman, Bautzer, Finell, Rothman & Kuchel disseminated a memorandum regarding "Considerations for increasing the U.S. sugar quota allocated to the Republic of Colombia." In sections this memorandum discussed "The Unintended Injurious Effects of the 1965 Sugar Act," "Colombia's Current Need for a Market for Its Sugar," and "The Future Value of a U.S.-Colombian Sugar Trading Partnership." The memorandum concluded by advising its readers that "It would be enlightened statesmanship for the United States to increase the sugar quota of her friendly neighbor, Colombia."

CUBA

Robert R. Brauer

Speech reprint

---

In February of 1970, Robert R. Brauer disseminated a copy of a series of speeches entitled "What is Cuba Like Today?" The speeches recount an October, 1969, visit to six provinces in Cuba by the Director of Peace Education for the Southeastern Regional Office of the American Friends Service Committee; titles of the speeches reflect the subject matter of the speech reprint:

"Everyday Life in Communist Cuba"

"Prospects for Cuba's Economic Future"

"Security and Liberty Under a State of Siege"

"Leadership in Cuba"

"Cuba--U.S. Relations"

The speeches reached the conclusion that "Although Cuba is not a parliamentary democracy . . . , probably the great majority of the people feel that the government is coping with their problems and providing the wherewithal for a better everyday life than had been the case under the Batista government, which did have the form of a democracy." The concluding statement of the reprint reads as follows:

"We cannot expect Cuba, which has been deeply affronted by our policies thus far, to respond eagerly to overtures on our part, but it is possible--with patience, respect, and magnanimity--for us to bring about a bettering of relations that will be to the benefit of both countries."

The press releases issued during the year reported further details of the Lighthouse's design as well as solicited funds to help finance the first stage of the Lighthouse's construction.

France Actuelle, a "semi-monthly report on modern France," was published by the Comite France Actuelle. Economic in content, the eight-page publication reported a wide variety of French products, French business activities, and special reports on the French economy. Examples of those subjects are readily found in the 1970 issues of the magazine:

France's Satellite Communications Center: ". . . the world's first telecommunications station to receive and transmit (in 1962) transoceanic television images."

French Automobiles: ". . . more and more conscientious and cost-conscious people are finding that the French producers are offering very-best-value-for-price [in automobiles]."

French--U.S. Trade: Regarding the proposed import quota bill before Congress, France Actuelle agreed with a reprinted editorial which stated, "There is a growing danger that the protectionist drive in Congress will ensnarl the United States in a trade war with the European Common Market and create grave problems for future relations between the world's two most important trading areas."

Great French Economic Improvement: As reported by France Actuelle, the French Finance Minister noted that ". . . next year's national economic growth would result from an increase in business investments (7.4 per cent), exports (9.5 per cent), and domestic consumption (5.1 per cent)."

Investment in France: Advertising Toulouse as an ideal location for new investors, France Actuelle reported exceptional tax, credit, and other fiscal aids and breaks as particularly attractive; "With these benefits, it is carefully estimated that 40 per cent less investment is required to put up a plant in or near Toulouse than to locate it in the Paris area."

The Berlin Business Barometer was published six times during 1970, and was a four page newsletter discussing the advantages of the city as a trade and investment center. A new program initiated under the "Law for the Promotion of the (West) Berlin Economy" was reported during the year as using "tax relief and investment bonuses to raise the city's output." The November, 1970, issue of the Barometer described in detail some of the incentives offered new investors: low corporate tax rate structures; depreciation allowances that run up to 75 per cent; direct cash grants, low four per cent interest loans; and a low personal income tax structure.

Other issues of the Barometer reported substantial economic growth throughout the city: in woodmaking plants, electronics firms, IBM machines, research and development (chemicals, optics, miniaturization), and in agricultural and food technology.

Press releases were disseminated frequently by the Registrant and reported a wide variety of subjects:

"Berlin Festival Theater Offering Include French, Italian Imports"

"Partners for Progress--8th Overseas Import Fair"
--held in Berlin in September.

"Television Center of Station Free Berlin (SFB)"

"INTERCHIC--3rd International Women's Fashion Fair in Berlin"

The films shown by the Registrant during 1970 were "24 Hours in Berlin" and "City Hall in Berlin;" these two films were shown primarily to college and high school audiences throughout the United States.

The most comprehensive source of the British Government's views on major news topics in 1970 was the Policy Statements, a publication of the Policy and Reference Division of the British Information Service. Virtually every news-related topic was included in the issues disseminated during the year:

COMMON MARKET: "What we are concerned to do is to work out with our friends and allies arrangements which ensure that we enter the Community [Common Market] on terms that are fair and reasonable for all parties, for the existing members of the Community, and for ourselves . . . ."

RHODESIA: "There will not be a settlement except within the [following] Five Principles:

- "(i) Unimpeded progress towards majority rule;
- (ii) No retrogressive amendment of the [1961 amended] Constitution;
- (iii) Immediate improvement in the political status of the African population;
- (iv) Progress towards ending racial discrimination; [and]
- (v) Proof of acceptability to the people of Rhodesia as a whole of any proposed basis of independence."

MIDDLE EAST: "An equilibrium is needed in the Middle East which both sides would be prepared to accept. /A/ny . . . settlement must be based on two fundamental principles: the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by war, and the need for a just and lasting peace in which every state in the area could live in security. This means . . . that Israeli armed forces must withdraw from territories occupied in the conflict; and that . . . the state of belligerency which has existed must be ended and the right to every state to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries free from threats or acts of force, must be recognized."

UNITED NATIONS: Prime Minister Edward Heath stated in his address to the 25th Commemorative Session of the United Nations General Assembly that he appeals ". . . for a new and more practical approach by our Organization to international problems. It is easier to stand rigidly by our own particular demands, our own doctrines, our own version of history, than to move forward onto ground where we may hope, through sensible compromise, to reach agreement with others. But the time has come in this Organization to resist these temptations. Let us resolve to improve our working methods. Let us cut out the waste of time and money."

VIETNAM: "The British Government welcome the proposals set out in President Nixon's address to the American nation. They have always believed in the importance of ending the fighting and seeking a settlement by negotiation, in particular by a peace conference on Indo-China."

NORTHERN IRELAND: "Northern Ireland will not cease to be a part of the United Kingdom without the consent of the people of Northern Ireland."

CAMBODIA: ". . . /A/s a matter of urgency, all the efforts of [the British] Government, together with all those whom we can influence or persuade, should be directed to securing the withdrawal of all foreign troops from the soil of Cambodia."

Policy Backgrounds, also a publication of the Policy and Reference Division, was issued 14 times during 1970; the subject matter was directed more towards domestic rather than foreign policies of the British Government. Among the items considered were government reorganization, the British balance of payments, the new Conservative Cabinet, and the general election of 1970.

Today's British Papers and British Weeklies reprinted excerpt from editorials appearing in various British newspapers; these editorials concerned the newspapers' reactions to both news events and government pronouncements. The newspapers ranged in the political spectrum from liberal (The Guardian, The Daily Mirror) to independent (The Scotsman, The Times, The Observer, The Sun) to conservative (The Daily Telegraph, The Yorkshire Post, The Daily Mail).

The British Record was a short, four page newsheet detailing basic governmental decisions; more information on the subjects appearing in the Record could be found in the more frequently published Policy Statements. Miscellaneous reprints of the Reference and Library Division included texts of speeches given by various British Governmental officials and brief biographies of Britishers in the news.

The British American Chamber of Commerce disseminated a monthly Newsletter as well as various reprints on issues affecting U.S.--British trade. Of primary concern to the Chamber, and a subject which dominated each publication of the Chamber, was the U.S. trade bill considered during the year by the Congress. The Chamber's views of the trade bill were expressed in an October statement before the Senate Finance Committee:

". . . /T/his bill will everywhere cut deeply with deleterious results for our members, for this country [the United States], and for the world at large . . . . /T/he idea that the U.S. industrial system needs this special protection to insure its survival, '. . . decidedly reflects a lack of confidence in the basic worth of the [U.S.] competitive system'."

Other trade issues included in the Chamber's publications were the October "Anti-Dumping" investigation of British ceramic tiles, the election of a new Chamber president in June, and overall figures of U.S.--British trade during the year.

The Israel Digest, a bi-weekly, eight page magazine, was concerned in 1970 entirely with current, news-related topics; articles appearing in the Digest were rarely more than one page in length and were reportorial in style. The Israel Digest did not solely concern itself with the conflict in the Middle East although considerable space was accorded that topic.

Sample articles relating to the conflict included such diversity as "1,000 Russians Man Canal Missile Sites" (which concluded that the Soviet news agency TASS in its statement denying that Russians were manning the missiles inside the cease-fire zone ". . . only proved Moscow's awareness that world public opinion was convinced of the veracity of Israel's charge at the Canal."); "Have Arabs Learned Jordan's Lesson" (which concluded that although some of the world had expected Israel to send a convoy of tanks into the Jordanian conflict, Israel had instead ". . . sent a convoy of trucks carrying food for the victims of the fighting." This co-operation, Prime Minister Meir asserted, was evidence of Israel's desire to see the ". . . consolidation of an Arab representation prepared to negotiate with us [Israel] . . . towards the establishment of two states--one Jewish and the other Arab Palestinian . . ."); and "Call for World Action Against Terrorism" (which after reporting the sabotage bombing of an Israel-bound SwissAir plane concluded the Arab terrorist group claiming responsibility for the bombing received "encouragement, immunity and protection" from Arab governments for their crimes).

Articles not directly related to the Middle East conflict generally reported activities of the Government of Israel and activities of Jewish individuals and organizations abroad. Receiving particular attention in May of 1970 was the formation of the American Zionist Federation in the United States; according to The Israel Digest, this ". . . new organization was created to coordinate major Zionist activities in this country [the United States]." Another organization, the Jewish Agency for Israel was afforded considerable coverage to report its reorganization; the new format will consist of three governing bodies which, The Israel Digest reported, will provide representation for non-Zionist Jews abroad.

Samplings of other items included articles reporting increased enrollments at Israeli universities, articles reprinting ". . . letters from young Jews in the Soviet Union, expressing their desire 'to live and die in Israel'." and articles reporting visits by various celebrities to Israel.

The press releases issued by the Jewish Agency--American Section, Inc. did not relate, in 1970, as much to the news-related topics as did the articles printed in The Israel Digest. The majority of the press releases reported accomplishments of American Jews in programs usually sponsored by the Jewish Agency--American Section, Inc.:

"1500 Non-Israelis Now Studying in Israeli Yeshivot"

"32 College Girls Leave for Israel to Study at Gold College for Women in Jerusalem"

"New Year's Greetings (speech) by Dr. Emanuel Neumann, Chairman, Jewish Agency--American Section, Inc."

"Record Breaking 5421 Americans Leave for Israel This Summer on Jewish Agency Work-Study Programs"

The exceptions to the above accomplishment-oriented releases were usually press releases reprinting speeches by influential Jewish leaders. One such release entitled "The Soviet Threat to Israel" reprinted the remarks made by Dr. Neumann at the founding ceremonies of the American Zionist Federation. Dr. Neumann concluded that the steps taken by the Soviet Union in the Middle East can only be interpreted as steps designed ". . . to achieve the military and therefore also political control of the whole Middle East."

During 1970, the Israel Information Services distributed pamphlets on a wide variety of subjects throughout the United States. The following is a list of the titles of a sampling of those pamphlets (following each title is a brief analysis of the pamphlets' subject matter):

"Where Jew and Arab Work Together" - concerned with the Israeli administration of Judaea, Samaria, Gaza, and Sinai, this twelve-page, color booklet concluded that under the "fair, forward-looking and upright [Israeli] administration" Arab and Jew can successfully work together;

"Refugees in the Middle East: A Solution in Peace" - describing how the refugee problem originally arose and how it has been handled over the past two decades, this 32 page booklet concluded that the refugee integration and rehabilitation could be positively realized if the Arab governments would respond to Israel's offer of a negotiated settlement;

"Israel's Resolve Is True and Lasting Peace" - reprinting Prime Minister Golda Meir's December 29, 1969, address to the Israeli Knesset (Parliament), this ten-page booklet reiterated the Israeli Government's position that only through direct negotiations between the Arabs and the Israelis could peace be achieved;

"Abba Eban: The Road to Peace" - a reprint of Foreign Minister Eban's September 19, 1969, address to the General Assembly of the United Nations, this seventeen-page booklet contained Mr. Eban's conclusion that as there ". . . is no such thing in history as an irreconcilable conflict . . . the world community should summon the Arab governments to abandon [their] hostility which flows against the ecumenical and unifying currents of twentieth century life;" and

"Soviet Principle versus Arab Practice" - depicting through photographs and text claims of Arab aggression in the Middle East, this 48 page pamphlet concluded that "The Soviet Union appears now to have come to the conclusion that the perpetuation of conflict in the Middle East serves its own national ambitions."

Krosney Productions Ltd. disseminated films about Israel to television stations throughout the United States in 1970; a list of the films distributed included the following:

"Mrs. Golda Meir Visits the United States" - (16mm color news feature)

"Eilat--Israel's Frontier Vacation Spot" - (16mm news film clip)

"Three Years Later--Economic Progress in Israel" - (16mm film news feature with suggested commentary for television use)

"Faces of Jerusalem" - (16mm news feature with suggested commentary)

The press releases and advertisements disseminated by Israel Communications, Inc. extolled the virtues of investing in the Israeli economy; these releases listed the following as some of the advantages of such investment:

grants for machinery, equipment, buildings, plants, research and development, and labor-training programs;

long term--low interest government loans;

income tax and customs duty exemptions; and large skilled and semi-skilled labor pool, with lower wage scales.

Other releases in 1970 advertised the myriad of Israeli exports available in the United States: sailboats, bakery equipment and ovens, fashions, foods, wines, and giftware.

The main intent of the press releases issued by the Ruder and Finn, Inc. during 1970 was the promotion of Israeli products to the American public. From green and black olives to gefilte fish, the exports were, in the words of the press releases, designed in quality, packaging, and pricing to compete with similar products in the United States. Receiving special attention in 1970 releases were Israeli fashions expressly made for export to world markets. Publicly exhibited during Israel's Sixth Fashion Week in February, these fashions included ". . . unique designs in leatherwear, knitwear, coats and suits . . . ." The originality of design, quality of production, and diversity of styling of the Israeli fashions were credited with achieving spectacular success to this industry in only a few short years.

The releases and booklets disseminated by the United States--Japan Trade Council during 1970 were directed primarily toward the defeat of the trade import quota bill considered by Congress throughout the year. A variation of this theme included releases detailing the amount of various goods purchased by Japan from United States producers; a tie between these two subjects was that the passage of the trade bill could provoke trade retaliation by Japan and other nations.

Among the reasons for the Council's opposition to mandatory United States import quotas on textiles and apparel were the following:

- "(1) The U.S. textile and apparel industries have shown a healthy growth over the past decade in production, sales, and profits, and new investments;
- (2) Employment in these industries, despite growing automation, has risen by about 300,000 between 1961 and 1969;

- (3) Textile imports in 1969 represented only 8.5 per cent of total U.S. consumption;
- (4) Restrictions on textile imports would result in inflationary price rises to American consumers, especially in the low income brackets;
- (5) Mandatory import quotas on textiles would have an adverse effect on U.S. exports of manufactured products and agricultural commodities; and
- (6) Textile quotas would have a severely damaging impact on the economies of many underdeveloped countries in Asia and Latin America."

The Council reached the conclusion that the trade bill, if enacted, ". . . could only encourage irritation abroad which in turn could only lead to diminuation in the flourishing export trade of the United States. The word retaliation is perhaps too strong but not entirely unjustified. We would strongly support United States initiative toward a freeing of commerce, an objective in the mutual interest of all."

During 1970, the releases issued by the Japan Trade Center, New York, advertised a variety of Japanese products available in the United States: electronic instruments, toys, computers, hardware, and television sets. The Japan Trade Center, Chicago, regularly disseminated a Midwest Trade Bulletin which concentrated on presenting the advantages of increased U.S.--Japanese trade. The Fall, 1970, Bulletin reported that "The total volume of importing and exporting between the U.S. and Japan is around $8.4 billion a year." The Spring, 1970, issue reported that the President of the Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO) is confident that the economic relationship between the United States and Japan will become even closer in the years to come.

Among the items disseminated by the above remaining Registrants were press releases from the Japan Steel Information Center detailing Japan's growing steel industry, press releases and magazine articles from Ruder and Finn, Inc. regarding the U.S.--Japan economic relationship in the 1970's,

During 1970, the most frequently published political propaganda reflecting Nationalist Chinese views was News from China, a daily press release datelining news both from and about Taiwan. One issue of major importance during the latter months of 1970 was the ". . . so-called Chinese representation issue before the General Assembly" of the United Nations. On that subject, the Nationalist Chinese Ambassador to the U. N. ". . . pointed out that the United Nations could not seat the Peiping regime without doing irreparable damage to its own future." The Ambassador reiterated that ". . . in the eyes of the Chinese people everywhere, the government of the Republic of China is the only legally constituted government that can truly give expression to the wishes of the Chinese people and speak on their behalf in the international community."

Other subjects which received considerable coverage in the News from China publication included the following:

VIETNAM: "The Chinese government considers U.S. President Richard Nixon's ceasefire proposal for Vietnam and Indochina as an indication of U.S. sincerity in seeking a genuine peace in that part of the world. However . . . it is yet to be proved that the Communists in Asia are really going to stop or slow down their aggression in the area as a result of Nixon's peace efforts."

ECONOMY: "The nation's economic growth this year will reach 8 per cent barring unforeseen factors," according to the Republic of China's Vice President-Premier. "The nation's trade deficit this year . . . will be reduced to less than US$50 million, about half of the US$94 million trade deficit registered last year."

TAIWAN POPULATION: "The total population of Taiwan stood at 14,320,000 at the end of January, 1970."

EDUCATION: "Universities and colleges in Taiwan will expand their classes in engineering, natural science, economics and business management in the years to come. In addition, they will work closely with the industries on research and development projects. Vocational education will [also] be stepped up. Top priorities will be given to industry, shipping and marine production."

TOURISM: "Half a million foreign and overseas Chinese tourists are expected to visit Taiwan in 1970. [These] estimates were based on the normal annual growth rate of 23 to 25 per cent plus the expected stopover of foreign tourists visiting Taiwan during the Expo 1970 in Osaka, [Japan]."

MAINLAND CHINA: In April, News from China reported that ". . . the Republic of China will under no circumstances relinquish its sacred mission of recovering the Chinese mainland and delivering its compatriots from the Communist yoke."

Other items published regularly by the Registrants included Background on China (reported various Communist Chinese views which had been monitored in Taipei and released by the New China News Agency in Peiping: "U.S. is Blamed for Invasion of Guinea;" "Peiping Terms Nixon's New Peace Proposal a Fraud;" "Peiping Raps Taipei--Phnom Penh Contacts;" "Peiping's First Satellite Aims at Potential Nuclear Blackmail;" these releases were distributed, the Chinese Information Services reported ". . . for the benefit of students of Communist Chinese affairs."), and Free China Weekly, a small, four page newspaper reporting current events in Taiwan.

A newspaper supplement dated November 8, 1970, entitled "The Republic of China" presented various aspects of the country: its history, its cities, its products, its trade, its international co-operation, and its future.

repeatedly attacked the United States' presence in Indochina but not to the exclusion of other items of news interest:

". . . /T/he South Vietnamese people certainly will not be fooled by Mr. Nixon's honeyed words and machiavellian tricks. The South Vietnamese people and the [Provisional Government] severely condemn and resolutely reject Mr. Nixon's phoney 'peace proposal'."

"The US is continuing its 'Vietnamization' to prolong the war in South Viet Nam while intensifying its armed intervention in Laos and going on with its aggression in the Kingdom of Cambodia."

"It has always been the opinion of the DRVN Government [Democratic Government of the Republic of North Viet Nam] that the absence of progress at the Paris Conference on Viet Nam is due to the US pursuance of its policy of aggression and its obdurate stance at the negotiation table."

Two other issues receiving considerable attention in Vietnam Courier during 1970 were Cambodia and the 25th Anniversary of the Founding of the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam:

CAMBODIA: Norodum Sihanouk was quoted in an October issue of Vietnam Courier: ". . . /T/he CIA and other 'agencies' have engineered plots against [Cambodian] unity, independence, neutrality and territorial integrity, let alone their corruption of part of civilian and military elite [in the country] . . . ."

25th ANNIVERSARY: "The past quarter-century has been the most glorious period in the history of our nation [the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam]. [Our] regime embodies the combination of the two forces of our era--national independence and socialism--, the combination of the fine traditions of our nation with the most advanced ideology of mankind."

Vietnam was a monthly, illustrated magazine disseminated by the Registrant; aside from attacking United States presence in Indochina, no one other topic dominated the articles published in 1970:

"Vietnam--Cambodia: Militant Friendship Will Remain Ever Green;"

"Special Issue: 80th Birth Anniversary of President Ho Chi Minh;"

"President Ho Chi Minh on Leninism and the Vietnamese Revolution;"

"Special Issue: 40th Anniversary of the Founding of the Viet Nam Workers' Party (February 3, 1930--February 3, 1970);" and

"25th Anniversary of the Founding of the Viet Nam People's Army."

The small, ten page newspaper South Viet Nam in Struggle published articles and news items relating to the continuous conflict between the "South Viet Nam National Front for Liberation" and United States and South Vietnamese forces in the country. On the United States' peace proposals, the newspaper stated that ". . . any person of good will can realize that all these five proposals are far from meeting the urgent requirements of the present situation in Indochina . . . ." The paper contended that "he [Mr. Nixon] is still resorting to crafty tricks while noisily clamouring for 'peace' and doing his best to widen and prolong his war of aggression in South Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos."

South Viet Nam in Struggle concluded in June that "T/he situation in all the three countries of Indochina evidently points to the aggravation of the defensive, losing posture of US imperialism. Keeping their initiative and offensive posture, the people of South Viet Nam continue to assail their opponent and score big successes."

The booklet form magazine, Vietnamese Studies, was characteristic of all the booklets disseminated by the Registrant. The titles of various issues of Vietnamese Studies follow:

"South Vietnam: From the N. L. F. to the Provisional Revolutionary Government;"

"The Year 1968: Chronology;"

"Traditional Vietnam: Some Historical Stages;"

"American Failure;" and

"South Vietnam: Realities and Prospects."

The variety of brochures and reprints disseminated by Warren Weil Public Relations in 1970 all described the benefits and advantages of utilizing the Colon Free Zone of Panama. "The Colon Free Zone is an autonomous agency of the Panama Government. It offers a duty-free haven, virtually free from government intervention and red tape, for merchandise destined to expanding Latin American markets."

PORTUGAL

Casa de Portugal	Noticias e Factos	4,000
	News and Facts	200

News and Facts was released intermittently during 1970 by Casa de Portugal; the majority of the releases reprinted speeches by Portuguese government officials on topics of wide and current interest.

One such reprint was of a radio broadcast talk given by the Portuguese Foreign Minister in which the Minister stated that ". . . the Portuguese Government was greatly surprised to be informed that the Government of the Republic of Guinea blamed it for a grave disturbance of public order that had just taken place there." The Minister concluded that the "events in Guinea were the pretext . . . to stir up anti-Portuguese hatred once more in Africa, to call up violent waves of emotion against us."

In the area of United States--Portuguese relations, a News and Facts release issued in November reported a "continuing series of meetings which have taken place periodically between senior foreign policy officials of Portugal and the United States, designed to enhance the political, economic and cultural relations between the two countries." Still another release reprinted the Portuguese Prime Minister's official statement on the death of Former Prime Minister Oliveira Salazar; regarding Professor Salazar's role in Portugal's history, the speech concluded that "he received a country that was financially ruined, divided, perturbed, suffering from lack of guidance, skeptical about its future, obsessed by sterile politics. He left us a country that is ordered, united, aware, sure of its aims, and able to attain them."

The Portuguese language edition of News and Facts was published approximately 250 times during the year; among the major news items that were reported from Portuguese cities by the country's news agency, ANI, were items about Guinea and the United Nations Security Council resolution, the Cabora Bassa hydroelectric project, Angola, the death of Professor Salazar, and Portugal's relations with other European countries.

The booklets disseminated by Casa de Portugal included the following:

"Regionalism: the Solution for Africa"

"The Present Problems of Black Africa"

"Cabora-Bassa: a Reality Set in the Core of Mozambique"

"The Crisis in International Law and the Portuguese Overseas Provinces"

"Portuguese Integration in the Tropics"

Peking Review, a weekly publication of Guozi Shudian (China Publications Centre) of Peking, was disseminated by both China Books and Periodicals and China Publications in 1970. Peking Review was the most comprehensive source of political propaganda about Red China distributed in the United States; the magazine's importance is also evident from the fact that a high percentage of booklets disseminated by the Registrants were, in their original form, articles published in Peking Review. An analysis of the 1970 issues of Peking Review revealed that aside from Chairman Mao Tse-tung and his writings, no one topic or subject dominated the articles published.

October, 1970, proved to be an important anniversary month according to Peking Review. October 25th marked the 20th anniversary of the entry of the Chinese People's Volunteers into the war in Korea: "With profound revolutionary feelings, the Chinese people join the fraternal Korean people in commemorating this militant occasion of our joint resistance to U.S. imperialist aggression." Also on the subject of Korea, October 9th marked the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Korean Worker's Party which ". . . has led the people in the struggle for the realization of socialist revolution and socialist construction by carrying forward the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and hard struggle, and in scoring great achievements."

By far the most important October anniversary (October 1) was the 21st anniversary of the founding of the People's Republic of China. According to Peking Review, 400,000 army-men and people met in an October 1 rally to "demonstrate their determination to rally closer round the Party Central Committee with Chairman Mao . . . , hold high the great red banner of Mao Tsetung Thought, persevere in continuing the revolution under the dictatorship of the proletariat, [and] adhere to Chairman Mao's proletarian revolutionary line and policies."

A September statement by the Government concerned the Middle East situation; in conclusion, the statement ". . . condemn[ed] U.S. imperialism and its collaborator and lackeys for their recently concocted plot of a fresh military aggression in the Middle East, and strongly condemn[ed] U.S. imperialism for instigating the reactionary Jordanian military authorities to launch military attacks against the Palestinian people's armed forces." The Cambodian issue provided Peking Review the opportunity to state what it considered to be the "primary purpose" of U.S. activities in Cambodia: "The primary purpose of U.S. imperialism in sending troops to invade Cambodia was to annihilate the patriotic armed forces of the country and prop up its running dog, the reactionary Lon Nol--Sirik Matak clique."

The oversized publications China Pictorial and China Reconstructs differed from Peking Review in that the first two made extensive use of color and black-and-white photographs to illustrate their wide variety of articles. China Pictorial primarily illustrated its articles with pictures of Chinese people at work in the various professions; the most frequent articles concerned the laboring professions, i.e. farming, machine work, railroad work, although some articles did illustrate the sciences, especially medicine. China Reconstructs published articles on a similar vein as China Pictorial; however, China Reconstructs devoted considerable space to the professions in different aspects of the arts: theater, opera, ballet.

Chinese Literature, a monthly, pocket-size magazine, published articles in the following general areas: "Poems," "Revolutionary Stories," "Essays," and "Literary Criticism and Repudiation." The first page of each 1970 issue of the magazine printed a quotation by Chairman Mao; each article within each issue extensively quoted the thoughts of Chairman Mao in its text; examples of the articles and their use of the Quotations of Chairman Mao follow:

Who Fears the Tempest?--"Be resolute, fear no sacrifice and surmount every difficulty to win victory."

A Party Branch Secretary--"Communists must have the thoroughgoing revolutionary spirit of the proletariat."

A Red Heart Loyal to Chairman Mao-- "When we die for the people it is a worthy death."

The East is Red--"The people, and the people alone, are the motive force in the making of world history."

Among the booklets, pamphlets, and books disseminated in 1970 were the following:

"The Constitution of the Communist Party of China;"

"People of the World, Unite and Defeat the U.S. Aggressors and All Their Running Dogs;"

"Refuting the Fallacies of Soviet Revisionist Social-Imperialism;"

"The People's Army is Invincible;"

"Songs to Chairman Mao;" and

"China's Renminbi: One of the Few Most Stable Currencies in the World."

RHODESIA

Rhodesian Information Office	Rhodesian Commentary	6,500
	Rhodesian Viewpoint	4,400
	Booklets	various

A bi-weekly, eight page magazine, Rhodesian Commentary reported current news events from Salisbury and other Rhodesian cities. Of major news importance to the magazine was Rhodesia's continued, strained relations with Great Britain; on this subject, Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith said on November 10, 1970, that ". . . he was prepared to consider making changes to the Rhodesian Constitution in return for concessions from the British Government--but only if such changes were proved to be in the interest of [Rhodesia]."

The field of economics was also of concern to the magazine: "The Deputy Prime Minister warned that while the 1971 earnings would be affected by the drought of the past summer, there were at the same time infra-structure demands which must be met if the country was to maintain a balanced economy and be able to meet today's demand and those of the next two years." Also on the economic scene, it was reported that ". . . Rhodesia must aim for 10,000 immigrants every year for the foreseeable future to provide sufficient skills and leadership to cope with the country's expansion."

Rhodesian Commentary concluded in mid-year that Rhodesia's part in the global situation is ". . . to ensure that we preserve and protect our established values of individual liberty; that we destroy communism in our midst; and that we emerge a strong and prosperous state whose citizens, of whatever race, colour or creed, abhor totalitarianism, cherish the liberty of the subject and act upon established principle."

Rhodesia's role in international politics was the focus of the bi-weekly Rhodesian Viewpoint information sheet. Often reprinting speeches and articles by non-Rhodesians with which it agreed, Rhodesian Viewpoint also relayed official government policies to its readers; one issue reported Prime Minister Ian Smith's statement that any negotiations between Great Britain and Rhodesia ". . . would have to be on the basis of [Rhodesia] being a sovereign independent republic."

Rhodesian Viewpoint expressed its approval of a resolution introduced in the United States House of Representatives which called on the United States Government to "immediately cease its inhumane, imprudent and economically and militarily disastrous policy of economic sanctions against Rhodesia; take necessary steps to restore normal trading relations; and accord full recognition and all diplomatic and consular rights attached thereto to the legal government of Rhodesia." The resolution's sponsor, Congressman Odin Langen (R.-Minn.) stated the following as facts in the Rhodesian situation; each of these facts was reported by Rhodesian Viewpoint in an October issue:

"Fact No. 1 - Rhodesia is moving towards her fifth anniversary as a completely autonomous state.

Fact No. 2 - All feeble cries notwithstanding, Great Britain exerts absolutely no sovereignty over Rhodesia and after 5 years of inconclusive activity has in reality abandoned any substantive claim to suzerainty over that former African possession.

Fact No. 3 - The Secretary General of the United Nations, Mr. U Thant, only recently admitted publicly that the U. N. program of economic sanctions against Rhodesia has been an utter and complete failure.

Fact No. 4 - Both the United States and Great Britain have already gone on record in the U. N. Security Council as vetoing any stronger measures, particularly against the use of armed intervention, against the people of Rhodesia."

Rhodesian Viewpoint presented these facts in its case for complete membership in both the United Nations and the body of international nations.

Among the booklets disseminated by the Rhodesian Information Office in 1970 were the following:

"Employment in Rhodesia"

"A People's Progress"

"The Industrial Potential of Rhodesia"

"The Man--and his Ways: an Introduction to the Customs and Beliefs of Rhodesia's African People"

"Africa--What's Ahead?"

South African Digest, a weekly, 16 page magazine, was published by the Information Service of South Africa and disseminated in the United States. The Digest was, in each issue, subdivided into various sections: International, Government, Economy, Trade, Sport, People, Industry, and Agriculture. Representative comments from some of those sections appearing in the 1970 issues of the Digest follow:

INTERNATIONAL: "South Africa's intentions with Africa [are] honest, and co-operation with South Africa [is] indispensable, especially in the fight against Communism and for the sake of the economic welfare of the continent as a whole."

GOVERNMENT: "The basis of the Government's policy [of separate development] [is] that the White man [has] the fullest right to be in South Africa. The land on which he [live is] legally his, and for that reason he [has] the right to decide that he [will] be represented by White representation only in his Parliament."

ECONOMY: "The present economic situation in South Africa [is] essentially sound; the economy [is] still showing the remarkable vitality which [has] characterized it for most of the past decade."

News from South Africa was a weekly, four page newsheet published and circulated by the Information Service of South Africa; each article in the News was current and news related. There was no overall subject matter that was given prominence by the publication, but the general area of international and domestic politics seemed to receive the most space coverage. An October issue of the News reported an article written by a former British Foreign Minister in which the Minister commented on South Africa's apartheid policy; the News quoted the conclusion of the Minister's article which exhorted critics of that policy to ". . . keep [their] criticism in perspective and avoid a situation in which, by selecting one particular country for obloquy, the world is guilty of double standards."

Also in the area of international politics, the News reported that "T/he South African Government had made it clear time and again that it based its relations with other states firstly on the acceptance of the rule of non-intervention in their internal affairs and secondly, the acceptance of the principle that differences of political systems were no bar to peaceful coexistence and friendly relations."

In domestic politics, the News reported in July that "T/he institution of self-government for the various Bantu nations was practically completed and [is] now being rounded off." This same report also stated that "Effective steps were being taken to give greater impetus to industrial development in the homelands by allowing white participation on an agency basis." Also on the domestic scene was a report in March by the editor of the Harvard Business Review; the News reported the editor's conclusion that "American businessmen should put more money into industrial projects in South Africa's fast-growing and soundly based economy."

South African Scope and South African Panorama were disseminated to readers interested in the country and people of South Africa. Both publications were published with extensive color photography of South Africa's beaches, mountains, art and theater, golfers, and wild life. Important articles appearing in these publications included the following:

"The Diamond City of South Africa: Kimberley;"

"Bantu Rhythm: 1970;"

"RAKA: A Ballet in Six Scenes;" and

"A Decade in Space: South African Council for Scientific and Industrial Research."

As can be seen from the following list of titles, the booklets disseminated by the Information Service of South Africa included all the major subjects discussed in the Service's other publications:

"The Concept of Economic Co-operation in South Africa;"

"South Africa: Land for Investment;"

"The Fishing Industry of South and South West Africa;"

"South Africa: Key to a Continent;" and

"The Golden Magnet: Why South African Gold Mines Annually Attract 220,000 Foreign Bantu."

The South Africa Foundation disseminated two releases during 1970; one release reprinted a letter from the Director of the Foundation to the President of the National Educational Television, and the other release was a copy of the Director's February speech to the African Problems Section of the Commonwealth Club of California.

In the letter to the National Educational Television, the Director stated his opposition to the N.E.T.'s broadcast of a "particularly inflammatory, one-sided and inaccurate discussion on the subject of South Africa." The Director concluded that the program in question (Black Journal), ". . . violated, in its content, its presentation and its composition, almost every normally acknowledged standard of fairness."

The objectives of the South Africa Foundation were stated in the Director's February speech: ". . . to give truthful and objective information about South Africa." The Director spoke to the issue of apartheid: "The Government's policy is not one of eternal white supremacy, nor is it based on any myth of racial superiority. It is a policy of giving each of the major tribal groups its independence in its own homeland. Its intention is to create a commonwealth of states, politically independent, economically interdependent."

SWEDEN

Swedish Information Service	News From Sweden	3,000
	Nyheter fran Sverige	360
	OBS! The Swedish	860
	Student Observer
	Sverige Runt	14

News from Sweden, a bi-weekly, three-page release, primarily published articles about Swedish domestic and international politics; occasionally articles were also published on all types of pollution--air, water, and land.

The issue of Sweden's possible membership in the European Economic Community (Common Market) dominated the latter 1970 News releases; according to a November report, "The chances of Sweden's becoming a full member of the European Economic Community are diminishing. Sweden's policy of neutrality puts certain limits to the possible forms of cooperation." The economy was a frequent topic on which articles were written; an October article outlined "A stern stabilization program, designed to bring back balance into the over-heated Swedish economy."

International affairs was the topic of the Swedish Prime Minister's address to the General Assembly of the United Nations; in that address, Mr. Palme outlined a "five point strategy for survival . . . to counteract the technical multiplication of the power to destruct and destroy:"

- (1) Disarmament: "the crucial and most urgent problem of our time;"
- (2) "intensified international efforts to counteract racism and colonialism in southern Africa;"
- (3) "intensified U.N. activities to uphold the respect for human rights;"
- (4) "safeguarding of the environment;" and
- (5) "bridging the enormous differences in social and economic conditions between rich and poor."

Foreign policy was also the topic of a May release condemning "insulting actions" to which the new U.S. Ambassador had been subjected. The condemnation declaration linked the subject of Vietnam to those actions:

"For our part, we have in substance criticized American policy in Vietnam. That is one thing. Precisely because of that we have reason to condemn with utmost severity the insulting actions to which the newly arrived American Ambassador has been subjected by a handful of people, or perhaps more adequately, scoundrels. Such actions are deeply unworthy in a country where the right freely to express one's opinion is self-evident. They damage the reputation of our country."

The monthly OBS! The Swedish Student Observer also published items on Vietnam; in February it was reported that the presiding committee of the National Swedish Union of Students resigned in protest against rejection of their proposals by the general student fall congress. One proposal called ". . . for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia."

Drugs were the topic of a March report which declared that "D/rug addiction is a medical and a social problem which demands co-ordinated action from medical, social and other agencies in Swedish society (emphasis in the original)." Of interest to all students was a May analysis of summer employment opportunities for college graduates: "In the wake of a tightening academic job market, many students will not be able to practice in the field of their future careers."

The Swedish Chamber of Commerce of the U.S.A. published a weekly economic News Bulletin for its members; each Bulletin was two pages in length. Of primary importance to the organization's members was the possible passage of the import quotas bill considered by Congress during the year. Reporting a U. S. Chamber of Commerce survey, the Bulletin stated that "F/oreign retaliation [against the bill's passage] could take many forms, besides counter-restrictions on imports[:] . . . discriminatory tax treatment against foreign companies, denials of work visas to U.S. executives, new curbs on profit remittances, procurement discrimination, and the forcing of U.S. foreign affiliates to sell stock to national interests."

Other topics of interest included articles about pollution measures and their effect, automobile sales, credit demands and rates, and corporate earnings of members.

SWITZERLAND

James O. Fox, Inc.	Press releases	20
Daniels and Houlihan	Memorandum	96

---

James O. Fox, Inc. issued nine press releases during the first four months of 1970; these releases announced the various activities of the Investors Overseas Services, Ltd. (I.O.S.). I.O.S. announced in February that it had "executed an agreement to purchase the assets and business of Canadian Channing Corporation, Ltd.;" an earlier release announced the acquisition of Sterling Management Company Limited.

The last press release issued maintained that although I.O.S. ". . . has been subjected to a wave of false and malicious rumors, The fact remains that our company [I.O.S.] is sound."

A memorandum dated May 5, 1970, was disseminated by Daniels and Houlihan on behalf of the Swiss Union of Commerce and Industry of Zurich, Switzerland, the overall organization of business in the country. This memorandum urged the abolition of ASP (American Selling Price) valuations from the United States Government's trade policy; the memorandum stated that ". . . failure to abolish ASP this year would effectively block further international negotiation in the tariff and non-tariff barrier areas. This would have adverse consequences for American industrial and agricultural exporters seeking to achieve greater access to world markets."

TIBET

The Office of Tibet	News-Tibet	900
---------------------	------------	-----

Intermittantly throughout 1970, the Office of Tibet released a news sheet entitled News-Tibet; each release included reports on the activities of the Dalai Lama who is living in exile in India. News-Tibet reported that in 1954, the Dalai Lama, "at the insistence of the Chinese," visited Peking and tried to "negotiate with the Chinese in order to let Tibetans continue living with freedom of culture and religion. When the lives of the members of the Tibetan Government and the Dalai Lama were seriously threatened [nine years later], His Holiness and followers sought asylum in India."

News-Tibet reported that "The situation in Tibet has ever since been gradually deteriorating, and conditions worsened with the advent of the so-called Cultural Revolution."

The Dalai Lama urged in statements reprinted in News-Tibet that "we must . . . renew our pledge to hold high the torch of freedom and to continue to struggle so that the sacred cause for which six million Tibetans are aspiring may be achieved. We . . . earnestly renew our pledge for the cause of Tibet's independence. A change in Tibet will definitely come about. The Chinese must realize that the spirit of freedom in the Tibetans is indomitable."

Moscow News was a small, English language, weekly newspaper which, during 1970, provided the most information on Soviet events to English speaking recipients in the United States. The 52 issues received during the year included both feature and editorial articles on the major news topics of the year:

LUNAR LANDING: "Flags and pennants with the image of the state emblem of the USSR and a bas-relief portrait of Lenin are installed on the "Lunokhod-1" and on the landing stage. Soviet science has acquired a new effective vehicle for the exploration of the Moon with the aid of automatic apparatuses."

USSR CONSTITUTION DAY: "The ideas of democracy, of popular participation in state affairs, permeate all Soviet society, from the Supreme Soviet to the remotest Soviet in Siberia, and to any Soviet home. While developing the political activity of the masses, the Party and the state are doing everything to enhance the effectiveness of public organizations, and intend to continue developing persistently the democratic foundations of society, so that every person can fully reveal his capabilities, for the common weal."

VIETNAM: "September 2nd [1970] is a significant anniversary for the Vietnamese people, our courageous friends in the anti-imperialist struggle, our ally in the struggle for the triumph of the ideals of socialism and communism. The establishment of the DRV [Democratic Republic of Vietnam] in 1945 as a result of the August revolution was the outcome of many years of devoted struggle waged by the Vietnamese people against the rule of colonialists, and also the outcome of their heroic resistance to the Japanese militarist occupation."

MIDDLE EAST: "The developments in the Middle East also provide evidence of the aggressiveness of imperialism. The bellicose Israeli circles supported by international, primarily US, imperialism are continuing and stepping up their provocations against the Arab nations, and violating the decisions of the UN Security Council."

CAMBODIA: "The American military invasion of Cambodia arouses the indignation of all peace-loving forces throughout the world. The Soviet Government believes that the expansion of US aggression in Indochina makes even more pressing the need for unity and greater cohesion of all socialist, all anti-imperialist and peace-loving forces in the struggle against aggression."

V. I. LENIN: "For every forward looking person, for millions upon millions, the name of Lenin is the symbol of a new world, the banner of struggle for social progress, peace and democracy and happiness of all men of labour."

A pocket-sized, monthly magazine, Sputnik, published articles on a wide range of subjects in 1970: Politics, Economics, Nature, Science and Engineering, Medicine, Art, History, and Cooking.

In the November issue of Sputnik, the "principal lines of economic development for the USSR in the period 1971-75" were reported as having been "worked out." The article concluded that "Today Soviet economists consider that the emphasis should be an intensification on increased effectiveness of social production (emphasis in the original)." The April issue of Sputnik was dedicated to V. I. Lenin who was characterized in the following manner by the magazine:

"His heroism was almost completely devoid of outward brilliance, his heroism was of a kind quite common in Russia, it was the modest ascetic devotion of the honest Russian intellectual revolutionary, unshakably convinced of the possibility of social justice on earth, it was the heroism of a man who has turned his back on all joys of the world, in order to carry out difficult work for people's happiness . . . ."

The May issue of Sputnik included an article entitled "Intercosmos-1: Cooperation in Space" applauding the "cooperation between the Soviet Union and other socialist countries in space research [which] began right after the first Sputnik went into orbit . . . ."

The profession of film-making was presented by the monthly Soviet Film magazine as an ideal initiator of international friendships. In the August, 1970, issue of the magazine, various Soviet film stars, directors and producers were pictured with friends in such countries as North Vietnam, Jordan, Japan, Cambodia, Guinea, and Dahomey. The text for the article explained that "The exchange of films between different countries forms a bridge of friendship, of mutual understanding, and mutual trust."

Films having both political content and intent were discussed by Soviet Film in 1970. One new documentary film entitled "According to Lenin's Behests" concerned the day-to-day effect Lenin's teachings have had on the lives of four persons. The purpose of the film was explained in the article: "In the life of each one of them we see how Lenin's ideas and counsel are being brought into effect, his deeds followed through." The documentary concluded with a short story on Lenin's decree on peace: "Our entire policy and propaganda are directed not at dragging people into war but to putting an end to war." The life of Lenin was the topic of numerous documentaries released in celebration of the centenary of his birth.

Special features in Soviet Film during the year included such a variety of topics as the Central Popular-Science Film Studios (the largest producer of scientific films in Europe), a documentary film entitled "Soldiers of Peace" (about the Lenin Prize winners), and the reception given Soviet films by various countries throughout the world. Other features in each issue of the magazine included biographies of film stars, synopses of current releases of films, and stories written on location with the companies of films currently being produced in the Soviet Union.

Soviet Military Review is a monthly magazine regularly publishing articles in the following general areas: Combat Training, Military History, International Affairs, Commentary, Book Reviews, New Books, and Sports. The Sections entitled "Commentary" and "International Affairs" provided the magazine's greatest variety of topics; these sections were not tied to historical or military strategy as were the majority of the sections in the magazine during 1970. Selected military topics appearing in the "Commentary" and "International Affairs" sections were the following:

SPAIN: "The US imperialists need new strong points on Spanish soil not only in order to threaten the European socialist countries and bring pressure to bear on their European NATO partners. The air bases in [Spain] may well be used also for military and political adventures against freedom-loving people in Africa and the Arab East."

MIDDLE EAST: "The Middle East crisis is a consequence of the Zionist-imperialist conspiracy, of the perfidious aggression which, triggered in June of 1967, is continuing to this day."

KOREA: "For almost a quarter of a century now, the presence of the US forces has been the main source of tension in the Korean peninsula, preventing peaceful unification of Korea on a democratic foundation."

The following is a list of other newspapers and periodicals disseminated in the United States by individuals registered on behalf of Soviet foreign principals:

Pravda

Izvestia

New Times

Soviet Union

International Affairs

Krokodil

Soviet Women

20th Century and World Peace

Sovfoto/Eastfoto (Liuba Solov) furnished photographs to magazines, newspapers, and book publishers during 1970; these photographs included pictures of the Soviet lunar landings, Soviet leaders, and American P.O.W.'s in North Vietnam. Also during 1970, Artkino Pictures, Inc. distributed motion picture films throughout the United States; included among those films were "Ten Days," "Arsenal," "The Land," "They Met in Kiev," as well as a variety of short subjects, i.e. "Art Treasures of the Kremlin," "Russian Dances in Scandinavia," and "Foreign Tourist in the USSR."

The circular letter disseminated by the United States Branch of the N.T.S.--National Alliance of Russian Solidarity included a reprint of an N.T.S. annual resolution published in the Congressional Record as an expression of support for President Nixon. Included in that resolution was the following statement of the aims of the N.T.S. organization:

". . . to help the peoples of Russia to regain their freedom; to build in Russia a truly democratic society, based on social justice, law, genuine respect for human personality, solidarity among men (as opposed to class war), abolition of all forms of exploitation and domination of the individual by society or vice versa."

Press releases

Hill and Knowlton, Inc. disseminated various press releases in conjunction with the state visit of Venezuelan President Rafael Caldera to the United States in June of 1970. The releases announced President Caldera's address to a joint session of Congress, his consultations with President Nixon and top Cabinet members, and his speeches before the National Press Club and the Organization of American States. Copies of the speeches were also provided to the press by the Registrant.

The success of President Caldera's visit was announced late in June; President Caldera was told ". . . that the U.S. would announce oil import quota measures that will insure an increase in imports from Venezuela during the second half of 1970." It was also reported that "since Venezuela has been a secure and stable oil source . . . , these factors will be taken into account in formulating the U.S. long-range oil program."

YUGOSLAVIA

Yugoslav Information Center	Yugoslav NEWS Bulletin	2,025
	Yugoslav Facts and Views	2,025

The Yugoslav Information Center published the Yugoslav NEWS Bulletin eleven times during 1970, and each issue was related to a current, news-oriented topic. An October issue of the Bulletin reported President Nixon's visit to Yugoslavia; the Bulletin stated that "During the visit, the U.S. President talked with President Tito about bilateral cooperation and current world problems. Among other things they exchanged opinions on the Mid-East situation, South-East Asia and other international problems."

A September Bulletin reported news of the Third Conference of Heads of State and Government of Non-Aligned Countries convened in Zambia. In his address to the Conference, President Tito said that ". . . open and unreserved opposition to aggression, common resistance to pressure, and to any attempt at interference in the internal affairs of others, intervention or foreign domination, was the imperative of our times and the essence of nonalignment in present international conditions."

A May Bulletin report stated that "The Federal Executive Council [of Yugoslavia] . . . expressed its deep concern and condemned most strongly [the] open military intervention by the United States, which is a brutal attack on the independence and neutrality of Cambodia." The visit by President Tito to Africa early in the year occupied considerable space in three issues of the Bulletin; "The President said that the Yugoslav delegation was deeply impressed with what they saw in Africa, and with what people can do when they are free."

Yugoslav Facts and Views was published nine times in 1970, and each issue was devoted only to one subject. Three issues were devoted entirely to discussion of the film "The Battle of the Neretva," a story about the 1943 "battle of the wounded and the survival of the Partisan main forces . . . where the fate of the Revolution was decided." Other Facts and Views included

"Nonalignment and The Great Powers" (a reprint from Foreign Affairs),

"Printing and Publishing [in Yugoslavia], 1963-1968" (which stated that "in total annual number of titles published, Yugoslavia compares well with other relatively developed European countries."), and

"Yugoslav Self-Management and Constitutional Amendment XV" (concerning the greater autonomy of economic and other work organizations in implementing self-management.).

European Community Information Office	European Community	32,250
---------------------------------------	--------------------	--------

The European Community Information Office published the magazine European Community eleven times during 1970; the final issue declared that the activity of the institutions of the Economic Community (Common Market) will be concentrated on the following in the coming years:

"transforming the Community into an economic and monetary union;

negotiating the Community's enlargement;

enhancing the Community's world role; [and] strengthening our institutions and achieving political union."

A subject of continued interest to the EEC was that of possible British entry in the Market; the European Community magazine in October reported a survey which determined the following on the subject:

"Among candidates for entry into the Community, Britain was the favorite with all six current members; and all but Italy were more eager to admit Britain than the British themselves were to join. The Netherlands has always been the most enthusiastic advocate of Britain's joining, partly because of traditional ties with Britain, and perhaps, the survey suggested, partly because of a desire to provide a counterweight to France and Germany inside the Common Market."

Other items of current interest are evident in the following selected titles of articles which appeared in the 1970 issues of the magazine:

"Labor Unions in Belgium and Luxembourg";

"U.S. Business Climate Chills [European Economic] Community Exports";

"Youth and the [European Economic] Community"; and

"The [European Economic] Community's Role in the Developing World."

EFTA Information Office	EFTA Bulletin	780
	EFTA Reporter	14,560

The European Free Trade Association Reporter was published eleven times during 1970 by the EFTA Information Office; "A/rticles appearing in the EFTA Reporter do not necessarily represent the views of the EFTA Council or of individual member Governments; They are published in order to stimulate free discussion and as a survey of European problems and trends."

The subject matter of utmost concern to the EFTA Reporter was the 1970 Trade Bill considered by the Congress. The British reaction to the bill was published in a December issue of the Reporter: "The protectionist objectives of the Bill, if it is passed into law, cannot fail to have serious repercussions across a wide range of American imports and across world trade generally."

EFTA members who were being considered for membership in the Common Market were the subjects of many articles in the 1970 Reporter:

BRITAIN: "A crucial question awaiting settlement concerns the size of this [reference to disparity in pricing of Britain's agricultural products] annual payment."

DENMARK: "The Danes see few problems, since they feel they can fit into the [Common Market] with relatively small adaptations of their existing policy."

NORWAY: "In this negotiation [for Norwegian entry into the Common Market], there were two special problems: (a) Norwegian agriculture . . .; (b) Fisheries policy."

The EFTA Bulletin, published nine times during the year, also concerned itself with the U.S. trade bill and the candidacies of Britain, Denmark, and Norway for entry into the Common Market. However, EFTA Bulletin, a lengthier publication, was able to report those two issues with far more depth than the Reporter. Other issues of importance included the following:

"EFTA Trade in the First Quarter of 1970;"

"Trade Unions and Free Trade;"

"The Importance of the EFTA Market to EEC [European Economic Community--Common Market] Countries;" and

"Special Issue [May, 1970]: Ten Years of EFTA, 1960-1970."

The press releases issued intermittently by the World Coffee Information Center reported important negotiations, publications, and news regarding the world's coffee trade:

NEGOTIATIONS: In September, a release reported that the "International Coffee Council, after 15 days of hard negotiations, . . . arrived at a formula for coffee export controls which . . . meets 'the conditions laid down' by the consuming countries."

PUBLICATIONS: The third edition of Coffee: Economic Impact was published in 1970 by the Registrant; press releases announcing the 60 page report's publication stated that the report details "The increasing significance of coffee trade to the United States and to the exporting countries under the International Coffee Agreement."

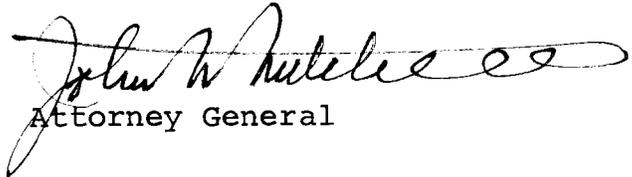

NEWS: "Coffee annually creates some 624,000 jobs and $4.5 billion industrial wages and farm income for Americans, while providing a livelihood for more than 20,000,000 and $2.3 billion in export earnings for the 41 coffee-producing nations of the world."

The principal purpose of Congress in enacting the Foreign Agents Registration Act was to require public disclosure by persons engaging in propaganda activities and other activities for or on behalf of foreign governments, foreign political parties, and other foreign principals, so that the Government and the people of the United States may be informed of the identity of such persons and may appraise their statements and actions in the light of their associations and activities. The emphasis of the Department of Justice in its administration of the statute has been toward the achievement of this purpose. In performing its functions, the Department has continued to rely upon its normal sources of information and upon the investigative efforts of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Registration under the Act does not imply recognition by the United States Government either of the de jure existence or legality of the foreign principal, nor does registration indicate approval by the United States Government of the propaganda material disseminated or of the activities of the registered agent.

Respectfully submitted,

A handwritten signature in cursive script, appearing to read "John W. Whiteley", written in dark ink. The signature is fluid and somewhat stylized, with a long horizontal flourish extending to the right.
