REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE
FOREIGN AGENTS REGISTRATION ACT OF 1938, AS AMENDED

JUNE 1959

TO THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA IN CONGRESS ASSEMBLED:

I have the honor to report on the administration of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended, pursuant to Section 11 of that Act, which requires the Attorney General from time to time to report to the Congress concerning the administration of the Act as well as the nature, source and content of political propaganda disseminated or distributed by agents of foreign principals registered under the terms of the statute.

This report deals with the administration and enforcement of the Foreign Agents Registration Act for the calendar year 1958, and is in supplement to the reports submitted for the calendar years 1955 through 1957.

In general, the activities of the Section charged with the administration and enforcement of the statute continued at the same pace as that experienced in the preceding year. Increased activity, however, occurred in connection with enforcement proceedings under the Act. On December 7, 1957, John Joseph Frank was found guilty by a jury in the District Court for the District of Columbia on all four counts of an indictment charging him with having acted as an agent of the Dominican Republic and of General Rafael Leonidas Trujillo without having complied with the registration requirements of the Act. On October 20, 1958, the Court of Appeals in a two to one decision reversed the conviction on the grounds that the attempts by the prosecution to link the defendant with the Galindez-Murphy affair were prejudicial. The case was remanded to the District Court and retrial commenced on March 5, 1959, with the Government limited by a ruling of the trial judge that no evidence as to Frank's possible participation in the disappearance of Professor de Galindez could be introduced. On March 12, 1959, after both sides had rested, but before the case was submitted to the jury, the court accepted a plea of nolo contendere offered by the defense to counts one and three of the indictment on the express condition that the defendant file an acceptable registration statement. Prior to that date, the court on its own motion had dismissed counts two and four. On March 20, the defendant filed a registration statement and on the same day was sentenced to a fine of $500 on each count.

On November 17, 1958, Arnaldo G. Barron of New York City was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury in the District of Columbia, which charged him with having acted as an agent of Fidel Castro and the July 26 Movement of Cuba without having filed the registration statement required by the Foreign Agents Registration Act. Subsequently, on March 6, 1959, the defendant filed an acceptable registration statement and on March 16, the District Court for the District of Columbia accepted a plea of nolo contendere to the indictment. On April 17, 1959, the defendant was given a suspended sentence of five years and placed on probation for that period.

The publicity given these two cases resulted in more than the usual number of inquiries with respect to the application of the statute and particularly as it may be applicable to the activities of groups within the United States seeking the overthrow of a government other than that of the United States.

STATISTICAL SUMMARY

During the year covered by the report, 94 registration statements were filed and 75 terminated, leaving 387 active registration statements on file as of December 31, 1958. This compares with 107 statements filed during 1957, 46 terminated and 368 active registrations on file as of December 31, 1957. However, during 1958 there were 513 short-form registration statements filed by partners, officers, directors or other persons rendering assistance to registrants which are partnerships, corporations, associations, organizations or other combinations of individuals, for or in the interest of the registrant's foreign principal, in comparison with 402 short-form registration statements filed in 1957.

An alphabetical list of registrants who filed statements during 1958, together with the name of the foreign principal and a brief description of the nature of each agency, will be found in Appendix II, while a list of these statements according to registration number is contained in Appendix I. An alphabetical list of individuals who filed short-form registration statements is set forth in Appendix IV and the identities of the registrants in support of whose statement these short-form registration statements were filed may be ascertained by reference to Appendix I through correlation of the registration number.

As is to be expected, the largest number of new registration statements was filed by persons engaged in publicity, public relations, advertising or allied activities on behalf of a foreign principal. Continuing the trend, however, as first noted in 1957, an increasing number of registration statements were filed by travel bureaus and agencies engaged in the promotion of American tourist traffic to Soviet bloc countries. A table showing the classification of statements according to the principal function reported will be found in Appendix III.

Also affecting the number and character of registrations filed are political developments in foreign countries. For example, the overthrow of the Batista regime in Cuba resulted in the termination of registrations of those persons who had acted within the United States as agents of the Batista government, while new registrations were filed by those who undertook to represent the Castro government. A similar situation occurred after the overthrow of the Jimenez government in Venezuela.

NATURE, SOURCE AND CONTENT OF POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

As in past years, the source of the greatest volume of political propaganda disseminated within the United States continues to be the official foreign government information and tourist offices. As of December 31, 1958, there were 55 foreign government information and tourist offices functioning within the United States, representing 34 different countries. These offices expended a total of more than seven and a half million dollars during the year 1958, and employed a total of 637 persons.

The total expenditures of foreign government information and tourist offices for the year 1958 shows only a slight increase over 1957. It is noted, however, that in 1958 the Arab Information Center, the Australian News and Information Bureau, the Austrian State Tourist Department, the Bermuda Trade Development Board and the Japan Tourist Association almost doubled their 1957 expenditures.

Appendix VI contains a table showing the expenditures and number of employees of government information and tourist offices as reported during the year covered by this report.

The material issued by these offices is designed in the main to promote good will toward the particular country concerned and to present its viewpoint on various national and international issues. Much of the material, of course, is aimed at promoting trade and attracting the American tourist dollar. As in previous years, foreign governments continue to rely upon American public relations and advertising firms for advice and guidance in the presentation of their information programs to the American people. Appendix VII consists of a table showing the amounts, including fees and expenses, received from foreign principals by American organizations and citizens during 1958.

The stream of propaganda material will ebb and flow in accordance with the intensity of the issues facing the foreign government or foreign political party which is attempting to influence American public opinion, and the various propaganda themes will vary as world events influence a foreign principal's viewpoint.

Following is an analysis of the principal trends noted during 1958 in the propaganda material disseminated by the countries or geographical areas listed below:

Great Britain. Great Britain maintains the largest budget for informational purposes of any foreign country conducting such activity within the United States. The British Information Services through the media of printed matter, radio broadcasts, television and lectures has touched upon practically every phase of the economic, social and political life of the British people in the United Kingdom, the Commonwealth countries and the British Dependencies. Some of the matters stressed in 1958 concerned proposals for a summit conference, the uncertainty in the Middle East and the Far East, and a solution to the so-called Cyprus problem.

The British Information Services distributes daily a summary of the principal comments published in British newspapers entitled "Today's British Papers," as well as a weekly publication entitled "Summary of British Weeklies." One example of a divergence of opinion among British publications was the comment regarding the landing of British troops in Jordan. The so-called right-wing papers indicated the landing was justified while the so-called left-wing press deplored the government's action. A large amount of space was allotted in publications disseminated to the American public to the racial disturbances occurring in Nottingham and London. These publications as a rule indicated that these racial disorders were generally deplored by the British public. For example, mimeographed sheets were prepared showing the reaction of British officials and the British press and a statement was circulated which contained in part the text of the sentences given the nine youths involved in the London incidents. All of these statements indicated the shock of the British public and the desire to correct the situation and prevent a recurrence. A booklet entitled "Color in Britain" was published describing the social problems accompanying increased colored immigration into the British Isles with suggested remedies.

Another matter of prominence treated by the British press was the dispute with Iceland over its declaration of a twelve-mile limit on fishing. The British presented the problem as they saw it with a possible solution in a booklet called "The Problem of the Fisheries Around Iceland."

Dominican Republic. The Dominican Republic Information Center in New York in its news releases dealt principally with the topic of tourism and various aspects of the economy of the Dominican Republic with the purpose, of course, of attracting tourist traffic. Some of the propaganda disseminated was designed to counteract the adverse publicity received from the American press by Generalissimo Trujillo's son while attending a military school in this country. The Galindez-Murphy affair was touched upon at the time Mr. Morris Ernst of New York published his report.

Propaganda in opposition to the Trujillo regime was disseminated by the Dominican Revolutionary Party. As would be expected, the material strongly condemned the Ernst report.

Cuba. During 1958, the greatest volume of propaganda from agents registered with foreign principals in the Latin American area came from the factions involved in the Cuban revolution.

The July 26 revolutionary movement, with offices in New York, Miami, Chicago and other cities, published a considerable amount of material attacking the Batista government in the form principally of small newspapers, pamphlets and press releases. All of this was aimed at the American public and sought to discredit the Batista government as a cruel dictatorship. Its primary objective was to arouse public sympathy for the July 26 Movement and to raise funds. On the other hand, the Batista government through its registered agent, Universal Research and Consultants, Inc., distributed a monthly bulletin defending its position in the struggle and accusing the Castro forces of being communist-controlled. Included in the material issued by Universal Research and Consultants was a pamphlet which contained information concerning the alleged communist background of several of the leaders of the July 26 Movement.

U.S.S.R. No official government information or tourist office is maintained by the Soviet-bloc countries. Considerable information with respect to the nature and content of political propaganda originating in these countries and disseminated within the United States is obtained from Four Continent Book Corporation and Imported Publications and Products, which are registered under the Act and are actively engaged in the sale of Soviet-bloc publications.

From the material distributed by these agencies, as well as from other sources, it was evident that the USSR continued to stress the tremendous achievements of the Soviet regime in the fields of culture, science and industry. Another theme that recurred frequently was what the Soviets described as the "relentless progress of socialism and resulting capitalist decline."

Emphasis was also placed upon the solidarity existing between the nations of the socialist camp while at the same time scorn and criticism was cast upon the revisionists and those showing an inclination for independence of thought. Much was made in Soviet propaganda of what was claimed to be failure of the European common market countries and Great Britain to agree on a free trade area in Europe. In other publications the Soviets claimed that the rivalry between West Germany and Great Britain in the export markets of the world contains the germ of discord and may lead to irreconcilable antagonism. However, the need to establish trade relations between the Soviet Union and the Western countries was urged, since, according to the Soviets, normal commercial intercourse between nations was a sure way of instilling confidence among them. For example, the Moscow trade agreement with West Germany was hailed as a contribution to better understanding between the two countries. In the same theme, Soviet propaganda emphasized the fact that the United States is the only great power that has no trade agreement with the Soviet Union.

As in past years, the theme of "peace" was prominent in Soviet propaganda and the point was made that it is the Soviet Union that continues unremitting efforts to establish "world peace." According to Soviet propaganda the Soviet Union's efforts for the suspension of nuclear testing are intimately connected with its desire for world peace.

China. The Chinese News Service, which is registered under the Act as the information agency of the Republic of China, issued weekly news bulletins in both English and Chinese, as well as special news releases to the American press. The material, in general, presented the Nationalist Chinese Government's views and comments on matters of current interest with additional space devoted during the year to the crisis created by the bombardment and threatened invasion of Quemoy by Red China. The material also stressed what the Nationalist Government believes to be the faults and failures of the Communist regime on the Chinese mainland and featured news of resistance and defections in that area.

A variety of propaganda literature published in the People's Republic of China is disseminated by Imported Publications and Products of New York, which is registered as the agent of, among others, Mezhdunarodna Kniga, Moscow; Guozi Shudian, Peking; and The China Welfare Institute, Shanghai. An assortment of periodicals reflected the news and trends in the political, economic and cultural spheres of that country, and the views of Communist China on world events. Particular emphasis was placed on the increased industrial production and the agricultural harvest produced through mass effort. Considerable anti-American propaganda was contained in articles dealing with the crisis over possession of the islands in the Taiwan Straits.

Indonesia. The propaganda disseminated by the Information Division of the Embassy of Indonesia is generally in the form of news releases and bulletins. Particular themes stressed included the campaign to destroy the rebellion in Central Sumatra and the continued dispute with the Government of The Netherlands over the West Irian territory. Denials of communist influence in the Government of Indonesia were made frequently in the material disseminated by the Information Division, while at the same time emphasis was given to government by "guided democracy." According to its propaganda, Indonesia is uncommitted in its foreign relations and believes in peaceful coexistence with its neighbors.

Japan. A number of public relations firms employed by Japanese governmental agencies accented the twin topics of tourism and trade promotion. Several booklets were issued by the United States-Japan Trade Council in an effort to counteract opposition to the importation of Japanese cotton products with emphasis on the general idea that unless Japan received support in improving her trade balance with the United States, that country would be unable to purchase the imports necessary to maintain her national existence, thereby endangering Japan's strategic role in Asia as an ally of the free world.

Middle East. The Washington Arab Information Center of the League of Arab States was officially opened in Washington, D.C., in June 1958. The Washington Center is the latest addition to regional Centers previously established in Chicago, San Francisco and Ottawa. These Centers offer information services in conjunction with the head office in New York and provide a variety of information services including publications, documents, photos, films and film strips, information tapes, research aids, and speakers.

Featured among the publication services of the Arab Information Center is a monthly magazine entitled "The Arab World." This magazine contained articles and photo essays about cultural, social, economic and political developments in the Arab countries. A fortnightly newsletter, "Arab News and Views," contains the Arab point of view on emergent area problems and briefs on economic and social progress in the respective Arab countries. A clipsheet, "The Bible Lands," appearing six times a year, contained popular and informative features on travel, cultural aspects and social and economic development. Aside from these three publications, the Center disseminates booklets, basic documents, press releases and reports.

Israel. One of the principal sources of propaganda is "The Israel Digest of Press and Events in Israel and the Middle East," published fortnightly in Jerusalem and disseminated by the Jewish Agency for Israel. This publication contains the Israeli position with respect to many controversies such as the Mount Scopus dispute between Israel and Jordan, the Lake Hula development scheme, Israel's alleged right to free navigation to Eilat, and the Arab refugee problem. In addition, this publication contains Israeli comments regarding other important events in the Middle East such as the Egyptian-Syrian Federation, the revolt in Iraq and the situation in Lebanon and Jordan.

The Israel Office of Information disseminated during this year press releases, the Israel Digest, a Yiddish translation of the Israel Digest, and a new monthly newsletter, entitled "Land of the Bible." This newsletter concerns religious events in Israel of interest to all faiths. According to the dissemination reports filed by the Israel Office of Information, about 16,000 individuals and organizations received copies of the Israel Digest and approximately 550 Jewish and Anglo-Jewish newspapers and individuals received the Yiddish translation.

Ghana. The information service of the Embassy of Ghana disseminated press releases and a bimonthly pictorial magazine entitled "Ghana Today." This glossy print magazine deals in vivid picture form with the economic, social, cultural and political progress of this country since its independence. Subjects included Ghana's role in Africa, the Conference of African States; the signing of the Union Pact between Ghana and Guinea; the development of Ghana's cocoa industry; the expansion of Ghana's educational and medical facilities; and Ghana's cooperation with Great Britain and the United States.

Algeria. The Algerian Front of National Liberation continued its propaganda campaign in the United States for the liberation of Algeria from French rule. The Front disseminated a news bulletin entitled "Free Algeria," and numerous pamphlets dealing with the Algerian question. According to this organization's dissemination reports, it distributed approximately five hundred copies of each publication issued during the year. Circulation increased slightly during the months of November and December, however, and reached the highest level attained by this organization since its beginning. Libraries, educational institutions, press services, newspapers, and public officials received the bulk of the material.

The Algerian National Movement issued early in 1958 a letter of Mr. El Abed Bouhafa, representative of this Movement in the United States, setting forth the proposals of the Algerian National Movement for th solution to the Algerian war.

France. The French Government Tourist Office is the principal source of information regarding tourist attractions, transportation facilities and accommodations in France. "France Actuelle," which is a fortnightly report published by the Comite France Actuelle, a private association of French businessmen, stressed French economic and industrial advancement. Featured among the successes of the French industrial development was the increase in the production of steel, automobiles, power, chemicals, cement and paper. Space in this magazine was also devoted to current topics of interest such as the European common market and European defense.

No new amendments to the Foreign Agents Registration Act were suggested to the Congress during the year, but the Department did again submit minor clarifying amendments to Sections 1 and 3 of the Act. These amendments would have the effect of defining a foreign principal as including a domestic organization which is substantially controlled or financed by a foreign government or foreign political party. As the law now reads, such a domestic organization is constituted a foreign principal by definition only in the event of a subsidy from a foreign government or foreign political party. The suggested amendment to Section 3 would make clear the views of the Department that the so-called commercial exemption from registration is available only when the agent's activities in the United States are in fact private as well as commercial or financial.

Registration under the Act does not imply recognition by the United States Government either of the de jure existence or legality of the foreign principal nor does registration indicate approval by the United States Government of the propaganda material disseminated by the registered agent.

The principal purpose of Congress in enacting the Foreign Agents Registration Act was to require public disclosure by persons engaging in propaganda activities and other activities for or on behalf of foreign governments, foreign political parties and other foreign principals, so that the Government and the people of the United States may be informed of the identity of such persons and may appraise their statements and actions in the light of their associations and activities. The emphasis of the Department of Justice in its administration of the statute has been toward the achievement of this purpose. In performing its functions, the Department has continued to rely upon its usual sources of information and upon the investigative efforts of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Respectfully submitted,

Attorney General
