Counsel for Claimant:

Law Office of Daniel Wolf

PROPOSED DECISION

Claimant brings this claim against the Republic of Iraq (“Iraq”) alleging that Iraq held him hostage in violation of international law in August 1990. Because he has established that Iraq held him hostage for 11 days, he is entitled to an award of $205,000.

BACKGROUND AND BASIS OF THE PRESENT CLAIM

Claimant alleges that he was living in Kuwait with his son when Iraq invaded the country on August 2, 1990. He asserts that, beginning with the invasion and for approximately 11 days thereafter, he was confined to his residence in Salwa, Kuwait, while Iraqi soldiers and Kuwaiti fighters exchanged fire. He claims that, during this period, he was “prohibited from leaving Iraqi controlled territory” and “detained as a hostage in Kuwait by the Iraqi regime” Claimant alleges that on August 12, 1990, he and several other individuals escaped via land to Saudi Arabia.

Although Claimant was not among them, many of the U.S. nationals in Iraq and Kuwait at the time of the 1990-91 Iraqi occupation of Kuwait sued Iraq (and others) in federal court for, among other things, hostage-taking.¹ Those cases were pending when, in September 2010, the United States and Iraq concluded an en bloc (lump-sum) settlement agreement.² The Agreement, which entered into force in May 2011, covered a number of personal injury claims of U.S. nationals arising from acts of the former Iraqi regime occurring prior to October 7, 2004, including claims of personal injury caused by hostage-taking.³ Exercising its authority to distribute money from the settlement funds, the U.S. Department of State provided compensation to numerous individuals whose claims were covered by the Agreement, including some whom Iraq had allegedly taken hostage or unlawfully detained following Iraq's 1990 invasion of Kuwait.

Under the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949 ("ICSA"), the Secretary of State has statutory authority to refer "a category of claims against a foreign government" to this Commission.⁴ The Secretary has delegated that authority to the State Department's Legal Adviser, who, by letter dated October 7, 2014, referred three categories of claims to this Commission for adjudication and certification.⁵ This was the State Department's second referral of claims to the Commission under the Claims

Settlement Agreement, the first having been by letter dated November 14, 2012 (“2012 Referral” or “November 2012 Referral”).⁶

One category of claims from the 2014 Referral is applicable here. That category, known as Category A, consists of claims by U.S. nationals for hostage-taking¹ by Iraq² in violation of international law prior to October 7, 2004, provided that the claimant was not a plaintiff in pending litigation against Iraq for hostage taking³ at the time of the entry into force of the Claims Settlement Agreement and has not received compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the U.S. Department of State. . . .

¹ For purposes of this referral, hostage-taking would include unlawful detention by Iraq that resulted in an inability to leave Iraq or Kuwait after Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2, 1990.

² For purposes of this referral, “Iraq” shall mean the Republic of Iraq, the Government of the Republic of Iraq, any agency or instrumentality of the Republic of Iraq, and any official, employee or agent of the Republic of Iraq acting within the scope of his or her office, employment or agency.

³ For purposes of this category, pending litigation against Iraq for hostage taking refers to the following matters: Acree v. Iraq, D.D.C. 02-cv-00632 and 06-cv-00723, Hill v. Iraq, D.D.C. 99-cv-03346, Vine v. Iraq, D.D.C. 01-cv-02674; Seyam (Islamic Society of Wichita) v. Iraq, D.D.C. 03-cv-00888; Simon v. Iraq, D.D.C. 03-cv-00691.

2014 Referral at ¶ 3.

On October 23, 2014, the Commission published notice in the Federal Register announcing the commencement of the second Iraq Claims Program pursuant to the ICSA and the 2014 Referral.⁷

⁶ Although the November 2012 Referral involved claims of U.S. nationals who were held hostage or unlawfully detained by Iraq, it did not involve hostage-taking claims per se. Rather, it consisted of certain claimants who had already received compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the State Department for their hostage-taking claims, and it authorized the Commission to award additional compensation to those claimants, provided they could show, among other things, that they suffered a “serious personal injury” during their detention. The 2012 Referral expressly noted that the “payment already received by the claimant under the Claims Settlement Agreement compensated the claimant for his or her experience for the entire duration of the period in which the claimant was held hostage or was subject to unlawful detention and encompassed physical, mental, and emotional injuries generally associated with such captivity or detention.” 2012 Referral, supra, n.3.

⁷ Program for Adjudication: Commencement of Claims Program, 79 Fed. Reg. 63,439 (Oct. 23, 2014).

On October 22, 2015, the Commission received from Claimant a completed Statement of Claim seeking compensation under Category A of the 2014 Referral, together with exhibits supporting the elements of his claim.

DISCUSSION

Jurisdiction

This Commission's authority to hear claims is limited to the category of claims referred to it by the United States Department of State.⁸ The Commission's jurisdiction under the "Category A" paragraph of the 2014 Referral is limited to claims for hostage-taking of (1) "U.S. nationals," provided that the claimant (2) was not a plaintiff in any litigation against Iraq for hostage taking pending on May 22, 2011 (the "Pending Litigation"), and (3) has not received compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the Department of State. 2014 Referral ¶ 3.

Nationality

This claims program is limited to claims of "U.S. nationals." Here, that means a claimant must have been a national of the United States when the claim arose and continuously thereafter until May 22, 2011, the date the Agreement entered into force.⁹ Claimant satisfies the nationality requirement. He has provided a copy of his cancelled U.S. passport, which shows that he was a U.S. national at the time of the alleged hostage-taking (August 1990). He has also provided a copy of his most recent U.S. passport, which establishes that he remained a U.S. national through the effective date of the Claims Settlement Agreement.

No Pending Litigation

Additionally, Category A states that the claimant may not have been a plaintiff in any of the so-called Pending Litigation cases at the time of the entry into force of the Claims Settlement Agreement.¹⁰ Footnote 3 of the 2014 Referral specifically lists the Pending Litigation cases for purposes of the Referral. Claimant has averred under oath in his Statement of Claim, and the pleadings in the cases cited in footnote 3 confirm, that he was not a plaintiff in any of those Pending Litigation cases. The Commission thus finds that Claimant has also satisfied this element of his claim.

⁸ See 22 U.S.C. § 1623(a)(1)(C).

⁹ See Claim No. IRQ-II-161, Decision No. IRQ-II-003, at 4-5.

No Compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement from the Department of State

The Claimant also satisfies the final jurisdictional requirement. Claimant has stated that he has never “received any compensation under [the U.S.-Iraq Claims Settlement Agreement] from the Department of State.” Further, we have no evidence that the State Department has provided him any compensation under the Claims Settlement Agreement. Therefore, Claimant meets this element of his claim.

In summary, this claim is within the Commission’s jurisdiction pursuant to the 2014 Referral and is entitled to adjudication on the merits.

Merits

Factual Allegations

Claimant states that Iraq held him hostage from August 2, 1990 until August 12, 1990, a total of 11 days. He alleges that he was living with his son in a villa in Salwa, Kuwait, when Iraq invaded the country on August 2, 1990. Early that morning, he received a call from the Kuwaiti Air Force (with whom he worked as a civilian) instructing him and his employees to “lay low in [their] quarters until further notice.”

¹⁰ The Agreement entered into force on May 22, 2011. See Claims Settlement Agreement, art. IX.

Claimant states that he “witnessed exploding [ordnance] illuminate the night sky and immediately fell into survival mode.”

Claimant states that, “[t]hroughout the ten days [they] spent in hiding, [he] kept [his] villa open to other foreign nationals who fled there to avoid being arrested by the Iraqi security forces.” He felt particular anxiety “knowing that [his] work with the Kuwaiti military put [him] in serious danger of arrest, torture or even execution by Iraqi forces who might accuse [him] of espionage.” He “was particularly concerned for the safety of [his] son . . . and feared that [his] affiliation with the Kuwaiti armed forces could result in his being arrested or physical[ly] harmed.” Claimant explains that his “physical safety was placed in jeopardy on several occasions[]” when Iraqi forces and Kuwaiti “resistance fighters” exchanged fire and “Iraqi tanks entered [their] neighborhood”

Between August 9 and 11, 1990, Claimant and some friends “planned an escape route with a caravan to Saudi Arabia.” Eventually, on the morning of August 12, 1990, Claimant and 23 other people traveling in five cars left Kuwait City and drove west across the desert towards Saudi Arabia. At one point, they encountered a road block; however, Claimant states that it “was not heavily guarded, so [he] continued past it at 80 mph and, fortunately, [they] were neither shot at nor pursued by the Iraqi guards.” He further states that, eventually, they “ended up at a border crossing manned by Saudi guards, who escorted [them] to a border station.” Several hours later, the guards allowed them to pass into Saudi Arabia; Claimant remained there for three days, after which he flew home to the United States via Amsterdam, Netherlands.

Supporting Evidence

Claimant has supported his claim with, among other things: his own sworn declaration, dated August 22, 2016, in which he describes his ordeal in Kuwait; a news article published after the Gulf War describing Claimant's experience, including his escape across the desert; a transcript of a September 17, 1995 speech by a representative of the Kuwaiti military honoring Claimant's service to the Kuwaiti Air Force and mentioning his presence in Kuwait during the first week of the Iraqi occupation; and a copy of his U.S. passport valid at the time of the Iraqi invasion, which contains, inter alia, a Kuwaiti entry stamp dated June 5, 1990, a Saudi entry visa dated August 12, 1990, a Saudi entry stamp with the entry date of the 12th visible (month and year not visible), a Saudi exit stamp dated August 15, 1990,^{11 12} and a U.S. entry stamp from Chicago, Illinois, dated August 16, 1990. Claimant has also submitted portions of U.S. passports from other claimants in this program which contain Saudi entry and exit stamps, as corroborative evidence that the stamps in Claimant's passport were issued by Saudi Arabia.

Additionally, Claimant has submitted a number of documents that provide background about the broader geopolitical situation during the First Gulf War in 1990-91, including some that relate specifically to the circumstances faced by U.S. nationals in ¹¹ In a declaration filed with this claim, counsel for Claimant explains that the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia uses the Islamic Hijri calendar, rather than the Gregorian calendar used in the United States and most western nations. Thus, the Saudi entry visa in Claimant's passport includes the date "٢١ محرم ١٤١١" in Arabic script, which translates to the 21st day of the month of Muharram in the year 1411, which in turn corresponds to August 12, 1990, in the Gregorian calendar. Likewise, the Saudi exit stamp includes the date "٢٤ محرم ١٤١١" in Arabic script, which translates to the 24th date of the month of Muharram in the year 1411, which corresponds to August 15, 1990, in the Gregorian calendar. The Commission has confirmed these conversions with the Official Calendar of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, and they are consistent with counsel's explanation. See Date Conversion, Official Calendar of Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, <http://www.ummulqura.org.sa/Index.aspx> (last visited September 14, 2017). Unlike Saudi Arabia, entry and exit stamps from Kuwait, Iraq, and Jordan used the Gregorian calendar.

¹² In his declaration, Claimant explains that, "[s]ince [he] escaped into Saudi territory without formal release from Iraqi border guards, no Iraqi exit stamp appears in [his] passport."

Iraq and Kuwait at the time. These documents include statements from U.S. and Iraqi officials, resolutions of the United Nations Security Council, newspaper articles, a report from Amnesty International on human rights violations committed by Iraq in 1990, unclassified cables and a memorandum from the U.S. Department of State, and affidavits submitted in two lawsuits brought by other U.S. nationals who were also in Kuwait or Iraq during the First Gulf War.

Legal Standard

To make out a substantive claim under Category A of the 2014 Referral, a claimant must show that (1) Iraq was engaged in an armed conflict and (2) during that conflict, Iraq took the claimant hostage.¹³ The Commission has previously held that, to establish a hostage-taking claim, a claimant must show that Iraq (a) seized or detained the claimant and (b) threatened the claimant with death, injury or continued detention (c) in order to compel a third party, such as the United States government, to do or abstain from doing any act as an explicit or implicit condition for the claimant's release.¹⁴ A claimant can establish the first element of this standard by showing that the Iraqi government confined the claimant to a particular location or locations within Iraq or Kuwait, or prohibited the claimant from leaving Iraq and/or Kuwait.¹⁵

Application of Standard to this Claim

(1) Armed Conflict: Claimant alleges that Iraq took him hostage in Kuwait on August 2, 1990, and held him hostage for 11 days, until August 12, 1990, when he escaped to Saudi Arabia. In its first decision awarding compensation for hostage-taking under the 2014 Referral, the Commission held that during this entire period, Iraq was engaged in an armed conflict with Kuwait.¹⁶ Thus, Claimant satisfies this element of the standard.

¹³ See Claim No. IRQ-II-161, Decision No. IRQ-II-003, at 16. An estate claimant would of course need to make this showing as to its decedent.

¹⁴ See id. at 17-20.

¹⁵ See id. at 17.

(2) Hostage-taking: To satisfy the hostage-taking requirement of Category A of the 2014 Referral, Claimant must show that Iraq (a) seized or detained him and (b) threatened him with death, injury or continued detention (c) in order to compel a third party, such as the United States government, to do or abstain from doing any act as an explicit or implicit condition for his release. Claimant satisfies this standard for the 11-day period from August 2, 1990, to August 12, 1990.

(a) Detention/deprivation of freedom: For purposes of analyzing Claimant's allegations of having been detained, his time in Kuwait following the Iraqi invasion can be divided into two periods: (i) between the Iraqi invasion on August 2, 1990 and the Iraqi government's formal closing of the borders on August 9, 1990; and (ii) from that August 9th formal closing of the borders until Claimant's escape into Saudi Arabia on August 12, 1990.¹⁷

From August 2, 1990, until Iraq formally closed its borders to foreign nationals on August 9, 1990, Iraq confined Claimant to his home by threatening all U.S. nationals with immediate seizure and forcible detention.¹⁸ Although some foreign nationals did manage to leave Kuwait and/or Iraq during this period, Claimant could not reasonably be expected to have escaped.¹⁹ Iraqi authorities were forcibly detaining foreign nationals (including U.S. nationals) in Kuwait, relocating many to Baghdad against their will.²⁰ Claimant understandably had, as the United Nations Compensation Commission has put it, a “manifestly well-founded fear” of being killed or forcibly detained if he and his family had made any attempt to leave the country.²¹ The Commission has previously recognized that for the purposes of the legal standard applicable here, putting Claimant in this situation in effect amounts to detention.²² Iraq thus detained Claimant from August 2, 1990, to August 9, 1990.

¹⁹ See id.

From August 9, 1990, until he crossed the border into Saudi Arabia on August 12, 1990, the Iraqi government confined Claimant to Kuwait, preventing him from leaving the country by the threat of force. Starting on August 9, 1990, the Iraqi government formally closed Kuwait’s borders, forcibly prohibiting U.S. nationals from leaving.²³ As the Commission has previously held, as of that date, Iraq prohibited Claimant from leaving the country, effectively detaining him within the borders of Kuwait and Iraq.²⁴ This policy remained in place through the date when Claimant escaped into Saudi Arabia on August 12, 1990. For purposes of the Commission’s standard, therefore, we conclude that Claimant was under Iraq’s control and thus detained from August 9, 1990 to August 12, 1990.

In sum, Iraq detained Claimant from August 2, 1990, until August 12, 1990.

(b) Threat: In its first decision awarding compensation for hostage-taking under the 2014 Referral, the Commission determined that the Iraqi government threatened U.S. nationals in Kuwait and Iraq numerous times with continued detention.²⁵ Both Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the Speaker of Iraq’s National Assembly Saadi Mahdi made clear that American nationals (as well as those from numerous other countries) would not have been permitted to leave Kuwait and/or Iraq at the time Claimant escaped to Saudi Arabia.²⁶ Claimant has thus established that Iraq threatened to continue to detain him.²⁷

(c) Third party coercion: The Commission has previously held that Iraq detained all U.S. nationals in Kuwait or Iraq at the time and threatened them with continued detention in order to compel the United States government to act in certain ways as an explicit and/or implicit condition for their release.²⁸ Iraq itself stated that it sought three things from the United States government before it would release the detained U.S. nationals; it wanted the United States (i) not to attack Iraq, (ii) to withdraw its troops from Saudi Arabia; and/or (iii) to end the economic embargo imposed on Iraq.²⁹ Indeed, at the time, the U.S. government itself understood Iraq's actions to be hostage-taking.³⁰

In sum, this claim meets the standard for hostage-taking within the meaning of the 2014 Referral. Iraq held Claimant hostage in violation of international law for a period of 11 days, and Claimant is thus entitled to compensation.

COMPENSATION

Having concluded that the present claim is compensable, the Commission must next determine the appropriate amount of compensation.

²⁶ See id.

²⁷ While we determine that these statements apply to Claimant and other similarly situated U.S. nationals who were prevented from leaving Iraq or Kuwait after the invasion, we do not make any findings as to whether they also apply to U.S. nationals with diplomatic status: Iraqi officials made specific representations about the ability of diplomatic and consular staff members with U.S. nationality (and their relatives) to leave Iraq and Kuwait throughout the crisis. See In Iraq: 'We Have A Problem' Iraq Holds Fleeing U.S. Diplomats Staff from Kuwait Reaches Baghdad, But Can't Leave, PHILA. INQUIRER, Aug. 24, 1990, <https://perma.cc/B2YF-79AY>.

Are, In Fact, Hostages" in U.S. Dep't of State, American Foreign Policy Current Documents 1990 484 (Sherrill Brown Wells ed. 1991); see also 2014 Referral at ¶ 3; cf. S.C. Res. 674 (Oct. 29, 1990) ("actions by . . . Iraq authorities and occupying forces to take third-State nationals hostage" and demanded that Iraq "cease and desist" this practice).

In its first decision awarding compensation for hostage-taking under the 2014 Referral, the Commission held that successful claimants should be awarded compensation in the amount of $150,000 plus an additional $5,000 for each day the claimant was in captivity.³¹ Therefore, for the 11 days Iraq held Claimant hostage, he is entitled to an award of $205,000, which is $150,000 plus (5 x $5,000). This amount constitutes the entirety of the compensation to which Claimant is entitled under the Claims Settlement Agreement.

The Commission hereby enters the following award, which will be certified to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment under sections 7 and 8 of the ICSA.³²

AWARD

Claimant is entitled to an award in the amount of $205,000.
