DRAFT/DELIBERATIVE

Adam,

I know we need to talk further about the possibility of an assignment. In anticipation of that conversation, here's a very rough draft of an opening email to make the idea more clear (draft/deliberative):

(b) (5)

A large rectangular area of the document is completely redacted with black ink. The redaction covers approximately five lines of text. The text "(b) (5)" is centered at the top of this redacted area.

You would then respond to confirm the assignment.

Thanks very much.

PJL -- DOJ Comey Firing Investigation -- 051117.pdf

Aaron,

Good talking to you. Here is the language of our pending document request:

Please identify each FBI assessment or investigation open at any time between July 1 and November 8, 2016 relating to the Russian government's efforts to interfere in the 2016 Presidential election, including investigation(s) into the nature of any links between individuals associated with the Trump campaign and the Russian government and whether there was any coordination between the campaign and Russia's efforts. For each such investigation, please provide a brief description of the subject matter, produce the predating EC or other predating document and any closing EC or Letterhead Memorandum (LHM), and identify the FBI official and Department prosecutor (if any) with direct supervisory responsibility for the investigation.

I also have attached to the email the letters that I received from Chairman Chaffetz and all the Democratic Senators on the Senate Judiciary Committee asking me to review the firing. I have several similar letters from other Members of Congress, as well as from various non-government organizations. In addition, DOJ-OPR has provided me with letters it has received requesting an investigation about the AG's recusal and his involvement in the firing.

I look forward to getting together to discuss these issues,

Michael

The Honorable Michael E. Horowitz
Inspector General
Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20530

Dear Mr. Horowitz:

Yesterday, May 9, 2017, the President fired the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, James Comey.¹ In a letter to the Director advising him of his termination, the President cited recommendations from Attorney General Jeff Sessions and Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein. The Attorney General and Deputy Attorney General based their recommendation on the Director's decision to publicize the results of the FBI's investigation of former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton last year, among other things.

I request that you expand the scope of your office's ongoing review of allegations regarding certain actions by the Department of Justice and the FBI in advance of the 2016 election to include the facts and circumstances surrounding the removal of Director Comey. You stated previously that your work includes an examination of whether Comey's public communications and notifications to Congress about the Clinton investigation comported with Justice Department and FBI policies and procedures.² You separately stated "if circumstances warrant, the OIG will consider including other issues that may arise during the course of the review."³ The recommendation to remove Comey indeed warrants such consideration.

The Honorable Michael Horowitz
Inspector General
The Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, D.C. 20530-0001

Dear Inspector General Horowitz:

We are writing to ask that you examine Justice Department officials' involvement in President Trump's decision on May 9 to dismiss FBI Director James Comey. We ask that you review the circumstances and any actions related to the dismissal, as well as the Justice Department's recommendation that Director Comey be terminated, to include but not limited to:

- The nature and timing of any communications and actions of White House and Justice Department officials, including any effort to orchestrate the dismissal of the FBI Director, or any indication that the stated public justification served as a pretext for dismissing the FBI Director for other reasons.
- The nature of any communications, and any actions undertaken as a result of such communications, between Director Comey and the offices of the Attorney General and Deputy Attorney General related to this investigation, including drafting and review of Congressional testimony, case updates, and requests for additional resources.
- Whether the Attorney General's actions related to his supervision of Director Comey or the dismissal of Director Comey were consistent with his stated recusal "from any existing or future investigations of any matter relating in any way to the campaigns for president of the United States," as announced on March 2.
- Whether the Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, or other officials in the Justice Department, in the course of their actions related to the dismissal of Director Comey, engaged in any misconduct or violated any duty – including the duty set forth in federal regulations for government officials to avoid any conduct that gives the appearance of a violation of law or ethical standard, regardless of whether there is an actual violation of law.

On March 2, 2017, Attorney General Sessions announced that he had recused himself from matters dealing with the Trump campaign. He specifically stated: "I have now decided to recuse myself from any existing or future investigations of any matter relating in any way to the campaigns for president of the United States."

The Honorable Michael Horowitz
May 11, 2017

On March 20, 2017, in testimony before the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, Director Comey confirmed that the FBI was "investigating the Russian government's efforts to interfere in the 2016 presidential election," including "investigating the nature of any links between individuals associated with the Trump campaign and the Russian government and whether there was any coordination between the campaign and Russia's efforts."

The FBI Director indicated in testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee on May 3, 2017, that its investigation into Russian interference in the 2016 election was ongoing.

On May 9, 2017, Attorney General Sessions wrote to President Trump, stating: "Based on my evaluation . . . I must recommend that you remove Director James B. Comey, Jr." Given that Attorney General Sessions had recused himself from the critical Russia investigation led by Director Comey, it is of great concern that Attorney General Sessions would recommend that Director Comey be fired while the investigation is ongoing. Recusal, or disqualification due to conflict of interest, from a given matter does not typically mean the recused individual is permitted to make personnel decisions for the lead investigator of such matter.

The President's letter dismissing the FBI Director cited a memorandum from Deputy Attorney General Rosenstein, also dated May 9, 2017. The Deputy Attorney General's memo noted several errors in judgment made by Director Comey, and the Attorney General's letter recommended that Director Comey be dismissed. However, multiple press reports indicated that White House and Justice Department officials "had been working on building a case against Mr. Comey" for at least a week, and that Sessions "had been charged with coming up with reasons to fire him."¹ It is of great concern that this memo was written only days after Director Comey reportedly asked the Deputy Attorney General for additional funds for the investigation. And just today, President Trump told NBC News: "I was going to fire Comey. . . . Regardless of the recommendation I was going to fire Comey."²

We believe these circumstances merit a thorough review, and we urge you to address this matter with the utmost urgency. We look forward to your review and a report on your findings.

Sincerely,

PATRICK LEAHY
