SEVENTH SUPERSEDING INDICTMENT

COUNT ONE
(Conspiracy to Participate in a Racketeering Enterprise)

The Grand Jury for the District of Maryland charges that:

At all times relevant to this Seventh Superseding Indictment:

Introduction

1. La Mara Salvatrucha, also known as the MS-13 gang (“MS-13”), was a gang composed primarily of immigrants or descendants of immigrants from El Salvador, with members operating in the State of Maryland, including in Montgomery County and Prince George’s County, and throughout the United States.

2. The name “Mara Salvatrucha” was a combination of several slang terms. The word “Mara” was the term used in El Salvador for “gang.” The phrase “Salvatrucha” was a combination of the words “Salva,” which was an abbreviation for “Salvadoran,” and “trucha,” which was a slang term for “fear us,” “look out,” or “heads up.”

3. In the United States, MS-13 has been functioning since at least the 1980s. MS-13 originated in Los Angeles, California, where MS-13 members banded together for protection against the larger Mexican groups. MS-13 evolved into a gang that engaged in turf wars for the control of drug distribution locations. MS-13 quickly spread to states across the country, including Maryland.

4. MS-13 was a national and international criminal organization and was one of the largest street gangs in the United States. Gang members actively recruited members, including juveniles, from communities with a large number of Salvadoran immigrants.

5. JUNIOR NOE ALVARADO-REQUENO (“ALVARADO-REQUENO”),
a/k/a “Insolente,” a/k/a “Trankilo;” MICHAEL EDUARDO CONTRERAS
(“CONTRERAS”), a/k/a “Katra,” a/k/a “Insoportable;” LUIS FERNANDO ORELLANA-

ESTRADA (“ORELLANA-ESTRADA”), a/k/a “Pinguino;” KEVIN ALEXANDER SORIANA-HERNANDEZ (“SORIANA-HERNANDEZ”), a/k/a “Brocha;” CARLOS DANIEL CARDENAS-BANEGAS (“C. CARDENAS-BANEGAS”), a/k/a “Perrico;” WILFREDO CARDENAS-BANEGAS (“W. CARDENAS-BANEGAS”), a/k/a “Torro;” LUIS ARNOLDO FLORES-REYES (“FLORES-REYES”), a/k/a “Maloso,” a/k/a “Lobo;” MIGUEL ANGEL COREA DIAZ (“COREA DIAZ”), a/k/a “Reaper;” and JAIRO ARNALDO JACOME (“JACOME”), a/k/a “Abuelo,” were members and associates of MS-13.

6. Members of MS-13 from time to time signified their membership by wearing tattoos reading “MARA SALVATRUCHA,” “MS,” “MS-13,” or similar tattoos, often written in gothic lettering. Members also signified their membership through tattoos of devil horns in various places on their bodies. Members and associates sometimes avoided conspicuous MS-13 tattoos, instead wearing discreet ones such as “503,” spider webs, three dots in a triangle formation signifying “mi vida loca,” or clown faces with phrases such as “laugh now, cry later.” Some MS-13 members and associates have chosen not to have tattoos at all, or to have them placed on areas such as the hairline where they can be easily covered, in order to conceal their gang affiliation from law enforcement.

7. The gang colors of MS-13 were blue, black, and white, and members often wore clothing, particularly sports jerseys, with the number “13,” or with numbers that, when added together, totaled 13, such as “76.” MS-13 members and associates also wore blue and white clothing to represent their allegiance, including blue and white shoes such as the Nike “Cortez.” As with tattoos, some MS-13 members and associates have selected more discreet ways of dressing in order to signify their membership and, at the same time, avoid detection by law enforcement.

8. MS-13 members and associates referred to one another by their “gang names,” or monikers, and often did not know fellow gang members and associates except by their monikers.

9. Members and associates of MS-13 were expected to protect the name, reputation, and status of the gang from rival gang members and other persons. MS-13 members required that all individuals show respect and deference to the gang and its membership. To protect the gang and to enhance its reputation, MS-13 members and associates were expected to use any means necessary to force respect from those who showed disrespect, including acts of intimidation and violence. MS-13 had mottos consistent with its rules, beliefs, expectations, and reputation, including “mata, viola, controla,” which translates as “kill, rape, control,” and “ver oir y callar,” which means “see nothing, hear nothing, and say nothing.”

10. Members and associates of MS-13 frequently engaged in criminal activity, including, but not limited to, murder, assault, extortion, and dealing in illegal controlled substances. MS-13 members and associates were required to commit acts of violence to maintain membership and discipline within the gang, as well as against rival gang members. Participation in criminal activity by a member or associate, particularly in violent acts directed at rival gangs or as directed by gang leadership, increased the respect accorded to that member or associate, resulted in that member or associate maintaining or increasing his position in the gang, and opened the door to a promotion to a leadership position. One of the principal rules of MS-13 was that its members, and persons seeking to become members, must attack and kill rivals whenever possible. Rivals were often referred to as “chavalas.” MS-13, in the areas of Prince

George's County and Montgomery County, Maryland, maintained rivalries with the 18th Street Gang, Latin Kings, Adelphi Crew, and Lewisdale Crew, among others.

11. Prospective members who sought to join MS-13 were required to complete an initiation process. Individuals who did favors and other acts for the gang were called "paros." Persons being observed by the gang for potential membership were known as "observaciones." Individuals who had advanced to the final level before being "jumped in" were called "chequeos." Chequeos underwent a probationary period during which they were required to commit crimes on behalf of MS-13 to achieve trust and prove their loyalty to the gang. To join MS-13 and become full members or "homeboys," prospective members were required to complete an initiation process, often referred to as being "jumped in" or "beat in" to the gang. During that initiation, other members of MS-13 would beat the new member, usually until a gang member finished counting aloud to the number thirteen, representing the "13" in MS-13.

12. MS-13 was an international criminal organization, and was organized in Maryland and elsewhere into "cliques," that is, smaller groups operating in a specific city or region. Cliques operated under the umbrella rules of MS-13. MS-13 cliques often worked together cooperatively to engage in criminal activity and to assist one another in avoiding detection by law enforcement. In Maryland and the surrounding area, these cliques included Sailors Locos Salvatrucha Westside ("SLSW" or "Sailors"), Parkview Locos Salvatrucha ("PVLS"), Normandie Locos Salvatrucha ("NLS" or "Normandie"), Langley Park Salvatrucha ("LPS"), Fulton Locotes Salvatrucha ("FLS" or "Fultons"), and Cabanas Locos Salvatruchas ("Cabanas").

13. ALVARADO-REQUENO, CONTRERAS, ORELLANA-ESTRADA, SORIANA-HERNANDEZ, C. CARDENAS-BANEGAS, W. CARDENAS-BANEGAS,

FLORES-REYES, and COREA DIAZ were members and associates of the Sailors Clique of MS-13. JACOME was a member and associate of the LPS Clique of MS-13.

14. Each clique was presided over by the “First Word,” the leader or president of the clique. The leader was also referred to as “Primero Palabra,” or “Shotcaller,” or “Corredor,” or “Runner.” Some cliques had a “Second Word,” or “Segundo Palabra,” who was the second-in-command of the clique. General members were required to take orders from the First Word or Runner and Second Word.

15. MS-13 cliques kept in contact and reported to the supreme runners for their respective cliques, who were often based in El Salvador. Cliques contacted their leaders based in El Salvador using mobile telephones during clique meetings to keep them updated on gang business, for advice, and to resolve disagreements regarding operations among local cliques. Incarcerated clique leaders based in El Salvador regularly communicated and directed orders to Maryland-based cliques through phones smuggled into Salvadoran prisons.

16. MS-13 members and associates met on a regular basis to, among other things, discuss gang affairs and report on acts of violence committed by their members, with the goal of inciting and encouraging further violence. Each clique held clique meetings where business specific to that clique was discussed. Any perceived indiscretions by members and associates for violations of MS-13 rules were talked about at clique meetings, and punishments known as “courts” or “violations” were issued. Courts or violations often took the form of beatings by fellow MS-13 members. More serious violations resulted in the issuance of a “greenlight.” A greenlight was an order and/or approval to kill.

17. MS-13 leaders from various cliques also held regional meetings to discuss issues between cliques and discuss criminal ventures among the cliques. Clique leaders from across the United States, from other countries, and within regions of the United States would meet or communicate by telephone conference to discuss gang rules and gang business, to resolve problems or issues among cliques and gang members of different cliques, and to unite gang members from across the country.

18. MS-13 cliques would combine and work together for various purposes known as “programs.” A person within the participating cliques would be selected as program leader.

19. MS-13 received money and income from sources including member dues and the extortion, or “taxing,” of brothels and other illegitimate businesses. Such funds, often referred to by MS-13 members and associates as “rent,” were used for gang purposes, including obtaining weapons and providing support for MS-13 gang members who were imprisoned in the United States, both inside and outside of Maryland, and in El Salvador.

20. MS-13 members and associates communicated about gang activities with other MS-13 members and associates in Maryland and elsewhere using mobile telephones, text messages, social media such as Facebook, e-mail accounts, and other modes of communication. Further, MS-13 members and associates would promote MS-13 and its activities through the creation and dissemination of rap songs and other communication facilitated by various internet means. Additionally, MS-13 members and associates used transnational and international money wire transfers to conduct and promote gang activities.
